Curry states, "The book is for individuals looking for a life changing experience as they walk through their own journey to know themselves as well as prepare for grief and loss when coping with death."

Curry explains that the book was written to help people determine who they really are and to help them shift the thoughts that they struggle with which can change their lives.

Curry has two book signing events, each with a portion of the proceeds benefiting different charities:

"The Unspoken: A Story of Love, Loss and a World Beyond Words," is available on Amazon.com. Curry's bio includes life as a financial analyst, where she spent years working in the business of logic, reason, and numbers. And yet this same, basic question - "Who am I?" - this desire to know herself, led her to explore the world of spirituality. Through years of working with hospice patients, learning to deal with grief and loss along with crisis intervention strategies, and an amazing encounter with a miraculous little boy labeled autistic, Curry has gained insight into this nonverbal communication in a realm beyond our everyday comprehension. Those very experiences aided her through her husband's unexpected illness and death. The power of our connection beyond words helped her cope with death, tragedy and its aftermath. She writes now to share her quest to know herself, to demystify telepathy, and to tell of her journey to find strength, and healing after losing a beloved partner.

"Terrie Curry's touching narrative provides insightful lessons on life, death, and the enduring nature of the soul. Terrie's wisdom shines through in The Unspoken, serving as a beacon of light for anyone seeking greater understanding of the nature of consciousness." - Vernon Nicolas, Research Director, EQUILIBRIUM Energy + Education, Chicago IL

"Terrie Curry's personal story is part romance, part tragedy, and altogether inspiring. Through her whimsical and poignant writing, we are shown guideposts to help us through our own, personal challenges in life." - Ashley Stamatinos

With an MBA in finance, Terrie C. Curry had a career in Chicago for twenty years. She dealt with financial and legal matters in portfolio management and estate planning. Her exposure included probate work in the Cook County Court system. She now lives in Denver, Colorado. A storyteller at heart, she enjoys the creative process of writing and speaking. She writes stories for the "Awesomism" movement, a new way to perceive children on the autism spectrum. Terrie takes the words of the parents and paints their story on a canvas of the heart. She says, "These children can be as wise as Yoda, and as uncompromising in their mission as R2D2. They inspire and empower us to know and be who we are."
