February 23, 2026

NAPLES, FL - February 23, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

MaxLiving Chiropractic Naples provides SoftWave Therapy in Naples, FL as part of its services. The treatment uses unfocused shock waves to address pain and inflammation in various conditions.

Healthcare providers have noted increased use of non-invasive therapies for musculoskeletal issues, with data indicating that such methods support recovery without surgical intervention. Factors including aging populations and active lifestyles contribute to demand for treatments that promote tissue repair. Clinics have responded by incorporating technologies that deliver acoustic waves to affected areas, consistent with trends in regenerative care.

SoftWave Therapy involves application of unfocused shock waves to stimulate healing in tissues. The process activates biological responses that increase blood supply and remove inflammatory markers. It addresses conditions such as knee pain, shoulder injuries, back pain, tendonitis, and plantar fasciitis. The therapy supports tissue regeneration by breaking down scar tissue and calcifications, while promoting stem cell activation. Sessions typically last 10 to 15 minutes, with patients often experiencing relief after initial treatments. Full courses range from three to six sessions, depending on condition severity.

The treatment differs from focused shock wave therapy by covering broader areas without anesthesia. It has received FDA clearance for pain reduction and circulation improvement. Patients report decreased discomfort and improved mobility following sessions.

Dr. Maryella Loman, Doctor of Chiropractic at MaxLiving Chiropractic Naples, graduated from the University of Minnesota and Northwestern Health Sciences University in 1989. Board eligible as a Chiropractic Sports Physician with over 29 years of experience, she launched the clinic in January 2018 with Dr. Greg Loman. "Non-invasive therapies like SoftWave support natural healing processes by enhancing blood flow and reducing inflammation in affected tissues," Loman said.

The clinic integrates SoftWave Therapy with chiropractic adjustments to manage pain from injuries or chronic conditions. This combination aims to restore function through biological activation without invasive procedures.

Dr. Greg Loman, Doctor of Chiropractic at MaxLiving Chiropractic Naples, graduated from Life University in Marietta, GA in 1990. He co-founded the guiding principles of MaxLiving and authored "One Minute Wellness." "Technologies that stimulate stem cell activity contribute to tissue repair in conditions such as tendonitis and joint pain," Loman said.

The therapy's mechanism involves generating broad-focused energy waves that penetrate tissues to depths of 7 to 12 centimeters. This penetration allows treatment of deeper structures while remaining non-invasive. Clinics report its use in sports medicine for accelerated recovery.

National health data show rising prevalence of chronic pain, affecting daily activities for millions. Surveys from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention document increases in conditions like arthritis, prompting adoption of regenerative therapies. In Florida, similar patterns emerge, with residents seeking options that minimize downtime.

SoftWave Therapy in Naples, FL, aligns with local needs for effective pain management. As part of services at MaxLiving Chiropractic Naples, it offers an alternative for those with persistent discomfort.

Patient sessions begin with evaluation to determine suitability, followed by targeted application. The clinic notes its compatibility with other chiropractic techniques for comprehensive care.

Research in medical literature examines acoustic wave therapies for their role in tissue regeneration. Studies indicate improvements in blood circulation and inflammatory response reduction, supporting use in orthopedic conditions.

The clinic's approach emphasizes overall wellness, combining therapies to address root causes. This method has facilitated outcomes for individuals with long-term pain, enabling better daily function.

The focus on SoftWave Therapy corresponds to explorations of non-surgical options in healthcare, where technologies provide insights into recovery processes. Its integration at the clinic exemplifies elements observed in modern practices.
