RestoPros of Bergen-Passaic County Responds to Winter Storm Water Damage Crisis

February 24, 2026

WYCKOFF, NJ - February 24, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

RestoPros of Bergen-Passaic County has mobilized its certified restoration teams to address the surge in water damage cases following the severe blizzard that recently impacted New Jersey communities. The company reports unprecedented demand for emergency water damage restoration services as homeowners discover ice dams, roof leaks, and interior flooding caused by the extreme winter weather.

The restoration company has expanded its round-the-clock emergency response operations to assist Bergen and Passaic County residents dealing with winter-related water intrusion. Ice dams forming along roof edges have caused significant water backup, leading to ceiling damage, wall saturation, and potential structural concerns in numerous homes throughout the service area.

"The combination of heavy snow accumulation and fluctuating temperatures has created perfect conditions for ice dam formation and subsequent water damage," said Janine Priolo, Operations Director at RestoPros of Bergen-Passaic County. "Our teams are seeing extensive damage in attics, ceilings, and walls where melting snow has found its way into homes. The key to minimizing damage is immediate response and proper moisture extraction before secondary issues like mold growth can develop."

The restoration specialists are employing advanced moisture detection equipment and industrial-grade drying systems to address the complex challenges posed by winter water damage. The process involves comprehensive moisture mapping, strategic placement of air movers and dehumidifiers, and continuous monitoring to ensure complete structural drying. The company's technicians, certified by the Institute of Inspection Cleaning and Restoration Certification, follow strict protocols to prevent long-term damage and ensure safe living conditions.

Winter-related water damage presents unique challenges compared to typical water loss scenarios. Frozen pipes, ice dam backups, and roof collapses from snow weight require specialized knowledge and equipment. The restoration process must account for ongoing freezing conditions while preventing additional damage from occurring during temperature fluctuations.

The company has implemented streamlined insurance claim assistance procedures to help affected homeowners navigate the documentation and approval process. Their team works directly with insurance adjusters to ensure proper assessment and coverage of winter storm damage, reducing stress for property owners during the recovery period.

"We understand the disruption and anxiety that water damage brings to families, especially during winter months," added Priolo. "Our commitment extends beyond just drying structures. We guide homeowners through every step of the restoration process, from initial emergency response to final reconstruction, ensuring their homes are fully restored to pre-loss condition."

RestoPros of Bergen-Passaic County maintains a comprehensive service portfolio including water damage restoration, fire and smoke damage restoration, mold remediation, and storm damage restoration. The company has served the Bergen and Passaic County communities for three decades, building a reputation for rapid response and thorough restoration services. Their team of certified professionals operates from their Wyckoff, New Jersey headquarters, providing emergency restoration services to residential and commercial properties throughout the region.
