RestoPros of North and Central New Jersey Mobilizes Emergency Response Teams for Post-Blizzard Recovery Efforts

March 16, 2026

MORRISTOWN, NJ - March 16, 2026 -
RestoPros of North and Central New Jersey has deployed additional emergency response teams throughout the region as homeowners face widespread property damage following the recent severe blizzard that impacted the area. The restoration company reports increased demand for services related to ice dams, roof leaks, and water infiltration affecting residential properties across North and Central New Jersey.

The Morristown-based restoration company has expanded its round-the-clock operations to address the surge in winter storm damage cases, with certified technicians responding to emergency calls for water extraction, structural drying, and ice dam mitigation. The company's teams are also addressing a notable increase in fire-related incidents attributed to space heaters, overloaded electrical systems, and other storm-related hazards that typically spike during extreme winter weather events.

"The combination of heavy snow accumulation, freezing temperatures, and rapid temperature fluctuations has created perfect conditions for ice dams and water infiltration," said Owen Lee, Operations Director at RestoPros of North and Central New Jersey. "Our teams are seeing extensive damage where ice buildup has forced water under shingles and into attic spaces, causing significant structural concerns that require immediate professional attention to prevent mold growth and further deterioration."

The restoration company's technicians are utilizing advanced moisture detection equipment and industrial-grade drying systems to address water damage before it leads to more serious structural issues. Their IICRC-certified professionals follow established industry protocols for both water damage restoration and fire damage restoration, ensuring properties are properly remediated according to national standards.

Beyond immediate water extraction and drying services, RestoPros teams are implementing comprehensive restoration plans that include damaged insulation removal, antimicrobial treatments, and coordination with insurance carriers to streamline the claims process for affected homeowners. The company's fire damage specialists are simultaneously responding to properties affected by heating-related incidents, providing smoke remediation, soot removal, and structural cleaning services.

"Winter weather events often create cascading property damage issues that extend well beyond the initial incident," added Lee. "Our integrated approach addresses not just the visible damage but also hidden moisture pockets and potential mold growth areas that can develop if water damage isn't properly mitigated within the first 48 to 72 hours."

The restoration company maintains partnerships with insurance providers throughout the region, offering direct billing services and detailed documentation to support property damage claims. Their teams provide comprehensive damage assessments, photographic documentation, and moisture mapping reports that help expedite the insurance claim process while ensuring all affected areas receive proper attention.

RestoPros of North and Central New Jersey operates as a full-service restoration company specializing in water damage restoration, fire and smoke damage restoration, mold remediation, storm damage restoration, and complete rebuild services. The company maintains IICRC certification and Better Business Bureau accreditation, with over 30 years of combined industry experience serving residential and commercial clients throughout North and Central New Jersey. Their emergency response teams remain available around the clock from their Morristown headquarters, providing immediate assistance for property damage emergencies across the region.
