April 15, 2016 -

Discreet Plastic Surgery, a Brooklyn, New York based clinic, has reported a significant rise in the number of men who are opting for cosmetic procedures in Manhattan. More specifically, the clinic states that they have seen an increase in the number of men who are choosing liposuction, and that the trend is not just seen in Manhattan, but all over the world.

Dr. Daniel Kaufman, physician and surgeon with the clinic states, "We have seen many men choose liposuction, much more so than just a few years ago, and we've noticed an increase in the number of men who are opting for this procedure worldwide."

Dr. Kaufman says that they have noticed a dramatic increase in the number of men choosing tummy tuck in Manhattan procedures as opposed to just this time last year. He states that overall, the number of men option for liposuction and tummy tucks have grown exponentially over the past decade.

"Men didn't historically believe that these were cosmetic procedures for them," says the surgeon. "I mean, women have been having plastic surgery for years, but men weren't really marketed for this type of thing."

Today, the surgeon states that men all over the world have learned more about the procedures that can give them the look or body that they want, and that these procedures are not nearly as geared toward women as they may have thought. The clinic offers a number of procedures that are designed for men and women, including many reconstructive techniques.

Dr. Daniel Kaufman MD FACS is a Board certified surgeon in plastic and reconstructive procedures. Dr. Kaufman founded Discreet Plastic Surgery, PC, which has offices in Manhattan and Brooklyn. He graduated with Cum Laude Honors from Binghamton University, and earned his medical degree from the State University of New York, Downstate Medical Center. During his education, he was elected to the Alpha Omega Alpha National Medical Honor Society.

Today, Dr. Kaufman and his staff offer a range of plastic surgery techniques including the liposuction Manhattan residents are going for. All are designed to provide patients with the look that they want. The surgeon and his staff invite those interested to view their website to learn more about the range of services that they offer.
