A&J Painting Inc. Highlights Premium Paint Selection Process

March 03, 2026

BERKELEY, CA - March 03, 2026 -

A&J Painting Inc., a family-owned painting contractor serving the East Bay since 1999, announced today that the company has expanded information about its paint selection process and product partnerships on its recently launched website. The Berkeley-based contractor works exclusively with premium paint manufacturers including Sherwin-Williams, Benjamin Moore, and Dunn-Edwards to deliver lasting results for residential and commercial customers.

The company's approach to product selection begins during the initial consultation phase. A&J Painting Inc. evaluates each project's specific requirements, including surface type, environmental exposure, and customer preferences, before recommending appropriate products. This assessment helps ensure that the selected paints and finishes will perform as expected over the life of the project.

Sherwin-Williams products feature prominently in the company's work. A&J Painting Inc. has identified Sherwin-Williams SuperPaint as a particularly effective option for both interior and exterior applications. The product line offers durability characteristics that align with the company's warranty program, which provides five-year coverage on exterior projects and three-year coverage on interior work.

"Product selection is not something we take lightly," said Alan Joyce, Owner of A&J Painting Inc. "After 37 years in this industry, I have seen how the right product makes the difference between a paint job that lasts and one that fails prematurely. We recommend products based on what the project actually needs, not based on what costs the least."

The company's partnerships with Benjamin Moore and Dunn-Edwards provide additional options for customers with specific requirements. Benjamin Moore products are frequently selected for interior projects where color accuracy and finish quality are priorities. Dunn-Edwards products offer formulations suited to California's climate conditions, particularly for exterior applications in the East Bay region.

Surface preparation represents another component of the company's quality approach. A&J Painting Inc. emphasizes proper preparation before any paint application begins. This includes cleaning, sanding, priming, and repairing surfaces as needed. The preparation process addresses issues that could compromise adhesion or cause premature coating failure.

"We will not sacrifice the attention to detail and unwillingness to cut corners in the painting process," Joyce stated. "Preparation work is where many contractors try to save time, but that shortcut always shows up later. Our warranty exists because we trust our process from start to finish."

The six-person team at A&J Painting Inc. receives ongoing guidance on product application techniques and manufacturer specifications. Owner Alan Joyce maintains a presence on job sites to oversee execution and ensure consistency with the company's standards. This hands-on approach allows for real-time quality control throughout each project.

Color consultation services are available to customers who need assistance selecting appropriate colors and finishes. The company's experience with various product lines enables informed recommendations about how specific colors will appear under different lighting conditions and how finishes will wear over time in particular applications.

A&J Painting Inc. handles projects ranging from single rooms to complete interior and exterior renovations. The company's service offerings include interior painting, exterior painting, cabinet refinishing, deck staining, drywall repair, and power washing. Each service category utilizes products selected for that specific application type.

The company holds a C-33 painting contractor license, number 759175, issued by the Contractors State License Board. A&J Painting Inc. has maintained EPA Lead-Safe Certification since 2002, qualifying the team to work safely on older homes that may contain lead-based paint. The company is fully licensed, bonded, and insured.
