LAKE ELMO, MN - March 04, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Kringle Workshops has added a new item to its collection of handmade wooden toys with the introduction of the Pickup Truck & Horse Trailer. This latest offering expands the company's range of durable, imagination-sparking playthings crafted in a home workshop in Lake Elmo, Minnesota.

The Pickup Truck & Horse Trailer is constructed from pine and oak woods, featuring birch wheels and dual rear wheels for added detail. It includes a pivoting trailer ramp that allows for easy loading and unloading during play. Like other toys from Kringle Workshops, this piece is sanded smooth with no sharp corners, making it suitable for children ages three and older. The design emphasizes safety and longevity, assembled using water-based glue and dowels, and left unfinished to maintain an eco-friendly profile.

This new toy joins an established lineup that includes the Wooden Bobcat, a sturdy construction vehicle replica designed for hands-on play. The Wooden Pickup Truck / Camper with Boat offers a complete set for adventure-themed activities, complete with detachable elements that encourage creative storytelling. Similarly, the Wooden Flatbed Tow Truck with Car provides opportunities for rescue scenarios, while the tractor and combine models reflect agricultural themes, allowing children to simulate farm operations.

Additional items in the collection feature the dump truck, ideal for transporting imaginary loads, and the train, which promotes understanding of locomotion and sequencing. The excavator enables digging and building simulations, and the logging truck supports themes of resource management and outdoor work. Each of these toys shares the same commitment to craftsmanship, with smooth finishes and robust builds that withstand active use.

Kringle Workshops focuses on creating heirloom-quality pieces that foster creativity without relying on batteries or electronic components. The toys are powered solely by the user's imagination, encouraging open-ended play that develops problem-solving skills and narrative abilities. The company's signature Kringle Elf logo is wood-burned onto each item, marking its authentic origin from the Minnesota workshop.

Tom Bethke, the craftsman behind Kringle Workshops, explained the motivation for the new addition. "The Pickup Truck & Horse Trailer was developed to provide children with a versatile playset that combines transportation and animal care elements," said Bethke. "It builds on our tradition of producing toys that can be passed down through generations, maintaining the natural wood aesthetic that parents appreciate for its safety and environmental considerations."

The introduction comes at a time when interest in traditional play materials continues to grow among families seeking alternatives to digital entertainment. Kringle Workshops has maintained its approach of handcrafting each toy individually, ensuring attention to detail in every piece. This method allows for custom requests, where buyers can suggest modifications to suit specific preferences, though all designs adhere to the core principles of safety and durability.

Beyond the new trailer set, the company's catalog demonstrates a variety of vehicle-inspired toys that cater to different interests. For instance, the Wooden Bobcat replicates heavy machinery with movable parts that enhance interactive play. The Pickup Truck / Camper with Boat includes multiple components that can be arranged in various configurations, promoting spatial reasoning. The Flatbed Tow Truck with Car features a functional towing mechanism, teaching basic mechanics through hands-on experience.

Farm-related items like the tractor and combine are built with authentic details, such as rotating wheels and detachable implements, to mirror real equipment. The dump truck's tilting bed allows for loading and unloading activities, while the train set encourages track-building and sequencing games. Construction enthusiasts might prefer the excavator, with its articulated arm for digging motions, and the logging truck completes the lineup with compartments for carrying pretend logs.

All toys from Kringle Workshops are made in America, supporting local craftsmanship in the Lake Elmo area. The use of natural woods like pine, oak, and birch ensures each piece has a unique grain pattern, adding to its appeal as a keepsake. The unfinished surface not only reduces environmental impact but also allows for safe handling by young children, free from chemical coatings.

Bethke added a second perspective on the company's philosophy. "Our goal has always been to create toys that spark lasting memories and encourage family interaction," said Bethke. "With the addition of the Pickup Truck & Horse Trailer, we continue to offer options that blend classic design with modern play needs, all while keeping safety at the forefront."

Customer feedback has consistently highlighted the exceptional build quality and responsiveness of the workshop. Many note how these toys become family favorites, often used across multiple generations. The emphasis on eco-friendly materials aligns with growing preferences for sustainable products in children's goods.

Kringle Workshops began as a home-based operation dedicated to reviving traditional toymaking techniques. Over time, it has grown to offer a select range of items that prioritize quality over quantity. The workshop's small-scale production ensures each toy receives individual care during assembly and finishing.

As part of its ongoing commitment to accessibility, Kringle Workshops now provides free shipping on all orders, making it easier for families nationwide to acquire these handmade pieces. This policy supports the company's aim to share its creations with a broader audience while maintaining the personal touch of a small business.

The toys serve as timeless gifts for occasions such as birthdays and holidays, designed to create cherished moments. Their durable construction means they can endure years of play, potentially becoming heirlooms that connect different family members over time.

Kringle Workshops remains focused on its core mission of producing safe, imaginative playthings from natural materials. The addition of the Pickup Truck & Horse Trailer exemplifies this dedication, offering a new way for children to engage with classic themes through hands-on interaction.
