SKIN Clinics Introduces Expanded Access to Botox Treatment Services in Calgary

March 05, 2026 -
SKIN Clinics has announced the expanded availability of Botox treatment services for individuals across Calgary and neighbouring communities served by the clinic. The development reflects the clinic?s continued integration of established medical aesthetic treatments within its dermatologist-led practice, offering patients access to injectable therapies delivered under professional clinical oversight.

SKIN Clinics, a Calgary-based medical and aesthetic clinic, confirmed that Botox treatments are now available to a broader segment of its service area, including Upper and Lower Mount Royal, Marda Loop, Bank View, Spruce Cliff, and Rosscarrock. The expansion aligns with ongoing efforts to address growing public interest in minimally invasive aesthetic treatments widely used in both therapeutic and cosmetic medical settings.

Botox, a purified injectable neuromodulator, has been used for decades in medical and cosmetic applications. In aesthetic contexts, the treatment is commonly administered to temporarily reduce the appearance of dynamic facial lines by relaxing targeted muscle activity. The procedure is typically performed in a clinical setting and does not require surgery or an extended recovery period. SKIN Clinics stated that its Botox services are offered following a professional consultation and assessment to determine suitability and treatment planning.

According to the clinic, the expansion of Botox availability reflects growing demand for injectable treatments delivered within regulated medical settings rather than non-clinical environments. SKIN Clinics operates under a dermatologist-led model, which it notes allows for a structured approach to patient evaluation, dosing considerations, and follow-up care. The clinic indicated that this framework is intended to support patient safety, informed decision-making, and consistency in treatment delivery.

Oghosa Ogiemwonyi, Owner of SKIN Clinics, stated that the expanded service access is part of a broader commitment to providing evidence-based aesthetic treatments within a medical practice. ?The availability of Botox treatments across more Calgary neighbourhoods reflects an ongoing focus on clinical oversight and patient education,? Oghosa Ogiemwonyi said. ?The treatment is approached as a medical procedure, supported by consultation and professional standards.?

Botox works by temporarily limiting nerve signals to specific muscles, reducing muscle activity that contributes to the formation of expression-related lines. The effects typically develop gradually after treatment and are temporary. SKIN Clinics emphasized that outcomes and duration vary based on individual factors, including anatomy, treatment area, and dosage. These considerations are addressed during consultations, where practitioners provide information regarding expected results and limitations.

The clinic noted that Botox is not positioned as a permanent solution or a substitute for comprehensive dermatological care. Instead, it is presented as one component within a wider range of medical and aesthetic services offered by SKIN Clinics. The clinic reported that treatment plans are developed on an individual basis, taking into account medical history, aesthetic goals, and professional assessment.

SKIN Clinics stated that practitioner training and protocol development were central to the decision to expand Botox services. Staff administering the treatment undergo structured training, and procedures follow established clinical guidelines. The clinic also indicated that documentation, consent processes, and post-treatment monitoring are incorporated into standard practice to ensure transparency and accountability.

The expansion comes amid broader trends in aesthetic medicine, where injectable treatments remain among the most commonly performed non-surgical procedures globally. Industry observations indicate sustained public interest in treatments that provide temporary aesthetic improvements without surgical intervention. SKIN Clinics indicated that its decision to expand access was informed by these trends, as well as patient inquiries about locally available options within medical clinics.

In addition to cosmetic applications, Botox has a history of use in various medical contexts, which has contributed to its recognition as a regulated injectable treatment. SKIN Clinics noted that its services are provided within the scope of medical aesthetics and are not marketed as lifestyle enhancements. The clinic stated that its role is to provide accurate information and professional administration rather than promote specific outcomes.

SKIN Clinics operates from its Calgary location and serves multiple neighbourhoods throughout the city. The clinic offers services spanning dermatology, skincare, laser treatments, and medical aesthetics. According to the clinic, the expansion of Botox treatment availability does not represent a shift in clinical focus but rather an extension of services already integrated into its practice model.

Consultation remains a required component of the Botox treatment process at SKIN Clinics. During consultations, practitioners review facial anatomy, discuss treatment objectives, and outline procedural details. This process is intended to support informed consent and ensure that individuals understand the temporary nature of the treatment and the variability of results.

The clinic also highlighted that follow-up care and patient communication are part of its service framework. While Botox does not typically require extended recovery time, SKIN Clinics stated that patients are provided with post-treatment guidance and advised on when to seek further assessment if needed.

As Botox services become available to a wider service area, SKIN Clinics indicated that it will continue to monitor patient outcomes and feedback as part of its quality assurance processes. The clinic noted that service expansion decisions are reviewed periodically to ensure alignment with clinical standards and patient needs.

SKIN Clinics stated that future developments will continue to focus on treatments supported by established medical use and delivered within a regulated clinical environment. The expanded access to Botox treatment services is positioned as part of the clinic?s ongoing commitment to providing medically guided aesthetic care to the Calgary community.
