

The Steam Team Announces Surge in Five-Star Reviews Across Austin Area

March 05, 2026

AUSTIN, TX - March 05, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The Steam Team, a locally owned cleaning service based in Austin, Texas, has announced a significant increase in five-star customer reviews across major online platforms, including Google Business Profile, Yelp Austin, and the Better Business Bureau of Central Texas. The recognition reflects sustained customer satisfaction across its core services, including carpet cleaning, area rug cleaning, air duct cleaning, tile cleaning, pressure washing, and natural stone cleaning.

Founded in 1983, The Steam Team has served homeowners and businesses throughout Austin, Travis County, and Williamson County for more than four decades. The company operates from its Central Austin location on Burnet Rd and maintains a second facility on Koenig Ln. Recent customer feedback highlights consistent service quality in neighborhoods such as West Lake Hills, Rollingwood, Cedar Park, Round Rock, Bee Cave, Lakeway, and the surrounding communities.

According to recent online testimonials, customers frequently cite professionalism, punctuality, and technical knowledge as key strengths. One Austin homeowner wrote, "The technicians explained the entire carpet cleaning process before starting and paid close attention to detail. The results were impressive, and the floors looked refreshed without any residue left behind." Another review from a Round Rock property manager stated, "Their team handled our commercial carpet maintenance efficiently and worked around our schedule. Communication was clear from start to finish."

Area rug cleaning services have also received notable praise. Heather Fannon commented, "The Steam Team did an incredible job on my rug. I was ready to toss it after years of dogs and mud/dirt, but they've made it look like new! Their pricing was very reasonable. They were timely and excellent with communicating their delivery." The company's rug cleaning facility in North Austin allows for controlled washing, dust removal, and climate-regulated drying, which reviewers have described as thorough and careful.

Air duct cleaning has emerged as another frequently mentioned service, particularly during Austin's cedar fever season. Tagen Gerard shared, "The Steam Team did an excellent job cleaning our dryer vent! They were on time, professional, and thorough - the difference in airflow was immediate. Highly recommend them for fast, friendly, and reliable service!" The Steam Team's technicians follow industry standards established by the Institute of Inspection Cleaning and Restoration Certification, commonly known as IICRC, which is widely recognized within the cleaning industry.

Hannah Cox shared, "The technicians arrived on time, were friendly and knowledgeable, and took the time to explain the cleaning process before getting started. They used a hot water extraction method, which worked wonders on high-traffic areas and some older pet stains I thought were permanent. Within a couple of hours, my carpets looked like new-clean, fresh, and noticeably brighter." Her review reflects the consistent emphasis on detailed workmanship and clear communication that appears throughout recent client responses.

The company attributes the growth in positive feedback to internal training, certification standards, and long-term employee retention. In a prepared statement, David Marquardt said, "The team takes pride in serving the Austin community with consistency and professionalism. Positive reviews reflect the daily effort technicians put into each home and commercial property. Maintaining industry certifications and ongoing training has remained a priority since the company's founding."

Local business organizations, including the Austin Chamber of Commerce, have recognized the company's longevity within the regional service sector. Over the years, The Steam Team has provided cleaning services for residential homeowners, realtors preparing properties for listing, and commercial clients managing offices, retail stores, and multi-unit properties.

The recent increase in online reviews aligns with broader housing growth in communities such as Pflugerville, Manor, and Cedar Park, where new construction and property turnover have expanded demand for professional carpet cleaning, grout sealing, and air duct maintenance. Industry observers note that consistent digital feedback plays a growing role in consumer decision-making, particularly within competitive metropolitan markets like Austin.

As online platforms continue to influence purchasing behavior, The Steam Team's management views verified reviews as an important accountability measure. The company reports that it monitors customer comments regularly and incorporates feedback into technician training and service protocols. Company leadership indicated that maintaining consistent service standards in both residential and commercial settings will remain central to operations as Austin's population and housing inventory continue to expand.

With operations spanning Central Austin and surrounding communities, The Steam Team continues as a cleaning service provider. The company remains licensed and compliant with applicable state and local regulations, including oversight by the Texas Department of Licensing and Regulation, where applicable.

In addition, company representatives noted that many recent reviews reference repeat customers who have relied on The Steam Team for multiple services over the years, from routine carpet cleaning to detailed natural stone maintenance. Management stated that long-term client relationships and consistent online feedback serve as measurable indicators of operational stability and community trust within the Austin market.
