Leading Stone Fabricator Expands Custom Countertop Services to New Communities Across the Southeast

March 05, 2026

Cumming, Georgia - March 05, 2026 -
Atlanta Stone Creations, a custom stone countertop fabricator and installer based in Cumming, Georgia, has announced an expansion of its service area to include communities across western North Carolina and Upstate South Carolina. The company, which has operated from its in-house fabrication facility at 1280 Oak Industrial Ln since 2006, will now provide full-service countertop fabrication and professional installation to homeowners, builders, and designers in Highlands, Cashiers, Sapphire, and Arden in North Carolina, as well as Greenville, Grey Court, Six Mile, Salem, Sunset, Lake Keowee, and Lake Jocassee in South Carolina.

The expansion marks a significant step for the Cumming-based company, which has spent nearly two decades building its reputation in the Metro Atlanta market. Atlanta Stone Creations has long served neighborhoods and suburbs throughout the greater Atlanta area, including Buckhead, Midtown, Alpharetta, Roswell, Marietta, Kennesaw, Decatur, Sandy Springs, and Dunwoody. The decision to extend services into the Carolinas reflects growing demand from homeowners and contractors in mountain and lakefront communities who have had limited access to dedicated stone fabrication specialists.

Leo Carvalho, owner of Atlanta Stone Creations, described the expansion as a natural progression of the company's growth. "These communities in western North Carolina and Upstate South Carolina have a real need for quality stone fabrication, and many homeowners and builders in those areas have been traveling long distances or relying on contractors who outsource the work," Carvalho said. "The same craftsmanship and personal attention that clients in Metro Atlanta have counted on for nearly 20 years is now available to families building and renovating homes around Highlands, Lake Keowee, Greenville, and the surrounding areas."

Atlanta Stone Creations operates a 10,000-square-foot fabrication facility in Cumming, GA, where all stone cutting, shaping, and finishing is completed in-house. The company does not outsource its fabrication work, which allows the team to maintain direct control over quality, scheduling, and the specific details that affect the finished product. Materials processed at the facility include granite, quartz, marble, quartzite, porcelain, and soapstone slabs, each available in a wide range of colors and patterns.

The in-house fabrication model has been central to the company's ability to serve both individual homeowners and high-volume builder accounts. General contractors and interior designers, who make up a significant portion of Atlanta Stone Creations' client base, have consistently cited the company's reliability and quality control as reasons for maintaining long-term working relationships. That same model will now be applied to projects across the expanded service area.

For homeowners in the newly served regions, the countertop process follows the same steps that Atlanta Stone Creations has refined over its years of operation. Each project begins with a consultation, during which a dedicated project consultant is assigned to guide the client through material selection, color matching, and edge profile options. After slab selection, the company conducts digital laser templating at the project site to capture precise measurements of the existing cabinetry. Fabrication then takes place at the Cumming facility, followed by professional on-site installation that includes leveling, seaming, caulking, and plumbing reconnection where applicable.

The typical turnaround from initial consultation to completed installation ranges from two to four weeks, depending on the scope and complexity of the project. Most kitchen installations are finished within a single day, though larger or more intricate layouts may require additional time.

The expansion into North Carolina targets communities in the Blue Ridge Mountains and the surrounding plateau region. Highlands, Cashiers, and Sapphire are known for distinctive residential properties that range from full-time mountain homes to seasonal retreats. Arden, located just south of Asheville, sits within one of western North Carolina's more active home renovation markets. In each of these areas, Atlanta Stone Creations will offer the full scope of its countertop services, including kitchen countertops, bathroom vanity tops, outdoor kitchen surfaces, stone slab backsplashes, and fireplace surrounds.

On the South Carolina side, the company's expanded footprint covers both the Upstate metropolitan area around Greenville and the lakefront communities near Lake Keowee and Lake Jocassee. Greenville has experienced steady population growth and an increase in both new construction and residential renovation activity in recent years. Smaller communities such as Six Mile, Salem, Sunset, and Grey Court have also seen rising demand for home improvement services as new residents move into the region.

Atlanta Stone Creations holds status as a Cambria Premier Partner, which provides clients in the new service areas access to Cambria's full design palette of engineered quartz surfaces. Cambria, an American-made quartz brand, offers more than 200 colors and patterns, many of which replicate the veining and tonal qualities of natural marble. The Premier Partner designation is not available to all fabricators and reflects a level of expertise and service commitment recognized by the manufacturer.

The company currently employs 12 people, and ownership remains directly involved in project oversight and quality control. That structure has allowed Atlanta Stone Creations to maintain a level of personal attention that larger fabrication operations often struggle to deliver. Each client, regardless of project size, works with a single consultant from the initial conversation through the final walkthrough.

Atlanta Stone Creations was founded in 2006 when Carvalho, who began his career as a granite polisher in 2001, left his position to open his own fabrication shop. The company started in a 2,000-square-foot workspace before expanding to its current 10,000-square-foot facility. Over the past 19 years, the business has grown primarily through referrals from builders, designers, and past clients, and it consistently maintains 5-star ratings across major review platforms.

Homeowners, builders, and designers in the newly served communities can schedule consultations by visiting the Atlanta Stone Creations website or contacting the company directly. Free in-home and showroom consultations are available for all new projects.
