Hopi Animal Hospital, a Scottsdale, Arizona based veterinary clinic recently revealed important health facts regarding family cats and dogs. The clinic points out that dental care for pets is crucial to their overall well-being and that pet owners have an array of options to help keep their furry family members healthy. Dr. Nathan Scholten with the veterinary clinic states, "One of the most important things you can do to keep your pet healthy is taking care of their teeth. Good oral care can add three to five years to the lifespan of your pet."

Dr. Scholten says that periodontal disease in cats has been directly linked to an increase in diabetes, and that while teeth cleaning may seem expensive upfront, it is the least expensive daily healthcare plan for pets. "Just imagine what your teeth would look and feel like if you never brushed and only had your teeth cleaned yearly! This is what your pet experiences daily," states Dr. Scholten.

The clinic states that for about $1.25 per day, pet owners can have their pet's teeth cleaned, and that the animal hospital also provides full blood work analysis, ECG cardiac testing, and full mouth dental x-rays as part of the overall price for dental care at Hopi Animal Hospital. Dr. Scholten says that about 95 percent of all dental disease occurs in pets beneath the gum line, which makes it important to have a radiograph done when performing dental services.

"So the next time you think that your pet's dental cleaning is too expensive, just ask yourself if your furry friend is worth a buck and a quarter a day for all the love and affection they bring into your life," Dr. Scholten says.

Dr. Scholten urges pet owners to contact the animal hospital located at 5533 E Bell Rd #101, Scottsdale, AZ to learn more or to schedule an appointment. He says that proper dental care for dogs and cats helps to ensure that they are pain free and have healthy, happy gums and teeth.
