

Mountain Radiance Announces Advanced Aesthetic Laser Operator Certification for Practice Director

July 06, 2026

ASHEVILLE, NC - July 06, 2026 -

Mountain Radiance Medical Spa announces that Practice Director Lauren Chandler has earned certification as an Aesthetic Laser Operator, enhancing the facility's capabilities in delivering advanced laser-based aesthetic treatments. The certification represents comprehensive training in laser safety protocols, skin physiology, treatment methodologies, and device operation across multiple skin types and conditions.

The certification comes as demand for qualified laser professionals continues to grow nationwide, driven by advances in aesthetic laser technology and increasing patient expectations for safe, effective treatments. Aesthetic laser operator certification programs require extensive coursework in laser physics, tissue interaction, safety protocols, and hands-on training with various laser systems used in medical aesthetics.

"Earning this certification required mastering the science behind laser skin treatments, from understanding how different wavelengths interact with various skin types to recognizing contraindications and managing potential complications," said Lauren Chandler, Practice Director at Mountain Radiance. "This advanced training allows me to better support our medical team in delivering treatments like CO2 laser skin resurfacing with enhanced precision and safety protocols."

The certification process covers multiple laser modalities used in aesthetic medicine, including ablative and non-ablative systems, fractional technologies, and various wavelengths for treating pigmentation, vascular lesions, and skin texture concerns. Certified operators must demonstrate proficiency in patient assessment, treatment planning, device calibration, and post-treatment care protocols.

Aesthetic laser skin treatments have evolved significantly over the past decade, with newer technologies offering improved outcomes and reduced downtime. However, these advances also require operators to possess deeper knowledge of laser-tissue interactions and treatment parameters. Proper certification ensures practitioners understand the nuances of treating diverse skin types safely while achieving optimal results.

The importance of working with certified laser operators extends beyond technical expertise. Certified professionals understand the regulatory requirements, documentation standards, and safety protocols essential for maintaining high standards in aesthetic medicine. They are trained to recognize when treatments may not be appropriate for certain patients and to modify protocols based on individual skin characteristics and medical history.

"The complexity of modern aesthetic lasers demands operators who understand not just how to use the equipment, but why specific parameters produce certain outcomes," added Chandler. "This knowledge is particularly crucial when performing more intensive treatments, where proper technique and parameter selection directly impact both safety and results."

Mountain Radiance Medical Spa offers a comprehensive range of aesthetic services including injectable treatments, chemical peels, dermaplaning, various laser treatments, RF microneedling, and hormone replacement therapy. The facility maintains BBB accreditation with an A+ rating and operates under physician supervision to ensure medical oversight of all aesthetic procedures.

The addition of certified laser operator expertise strengthens the facility's commitment to maintaining high standards in aesthetic medicine while addressing the growing demand for advanced skin rejuvenation treatments in the region.
