

HHI Windows and Doors Highlights Community Support for Karen Wellington Foundation During RBC Heritage

March 16, 2026

BLUFFTON, SC - March 16, 2026 -

HHI Windows and Doors is drawing attention to the growing impact of its community partnership with the Karen Wellington Foundation for Living with Breast Cancer as the Lowcountry turns its focus to the RBC Heritage golf tournament.

?The Karen Wellington Foundation (KWF) is a nonprofit that puts fun and ?more living? on the calendars of women and families living with breast cancer. The foundation provides vacations, spa days, concert tickets, and other uplifting experiences. Instead of focusing solely on treatment and clinical care, the foundation emphasizes time away, shared memories, and moments of normalcy. These become especially valuable when families are busy with appointments, logistics, and financial strain.

?RBC Heritage is South Carolina?s PGA TOUR Signature Event, held annually at Harbour Town Golf Links on Hilton Head Island. The tournament, through the Heritage Classic Foundation and related initiatives, has a longstanding reputation for channeling significant funding to nonprofits that improve the quality of life across South Carolina and Georgia.

?The Bluffton-based, family-owned window and door company is using this year?s tournament season to show how sustained local business involvement?through programs such as Birdies for Charity and Heritage Champions Fore Charity?can create joyful experiences for women and families living with breast cancer in the Hilton Head and Bluffton area.

?As residents and visitors gather for the event and its charitable stories, HHI Windows and Doors is highlighting Birdies for Charity and Heritage Champions Fore Charity as practical ways for golf fans and community members to align their RBC Heritage experience with the Karen Wellington Foundation?s mission.

?The Birdies for Charity program lets participants pledge a donation for every birdie made, turning each scoring moment into a direct contribution to a chosen charity. As birdies accumulate, so does the impact for organizations like KWF that donors select.

?Through Heritage Champions Fore Charity, supporters can make direct contributions and designate KWF as their beneficiary. Combined with Birdies for Charity, this direct-giving option creates multiple ways to support the foundation?s work. People can join by following every birdie at Harbour Town or simply by giving during tournament season.

?The timing of this renewed focus on impact coincides with increased attention on charitable giving in the region during the RBC Heritage. By linking its community work to this culture of giving, HHI Windows and Doors shows how small and mid-sized businesses can support causes that benefit Lowcountry residents all year. The company?s leadership emphasizes that its customers are also neighbors, friends, and co-workers.

The company recently expanded its local presence with the opening of its new showroom in Bluffton, creating a dedicated space where homeowners can explore window and door options and connect with the HHI team. The showroom also serves as another way for the company to stay closely connected with the community it supports through partnerships such as the Karen Wellington Foundation.

?The challenges of breast cancer affect the whole community, according to HHI Windows and Doors. Through its relationship with KWF and support of programs like Birdies for Charity and Heritage Champions Fore Charity, more local families receive time away at the beach, a memorable night out, or another special break that creates positive memories during tough times.

?HHI Windows and Doors has become a local supporter of KWF by integrating community giving into its daily operations and long-term plans. The company uses its platform to increase visibility for KWF?s mission in South Carolina. It donates a portion of sales proceeds to the foundation to support trips and special experiences for families in Bluffton, Hilton Head Island, and the surrounding region.

?This partnership also reflects a wider effort to build a local network around KWF in Hilton Head and Bluffton. HHI Windows and Doors encourages other community members, businesses, and volunteers to learn about the foundation?s work and consider participating as donors, nominators, or event supporters.

?As a company focused on home improvement, HHI Windows and Doors sees its community work as part of its core commitment to safety, comfort, and peace of mind. This has included financial contributions, participation in local events, and providing practical help to families in need when possible. While these efforts differ from commercial operations, they have become a defining part of the company?s identity as a local, family-run business.

?As the RBC Heritage shines a spotlight on charity in the Lowcountry, HHI Windows and Doors is using this moment to highlight how local partnerships with groups like the Karen Wellington Foundation help improve lives beyond the scoreboard. The company encourages the community to explore Birdies for Charity, consider a direct gift through Heritage Champions Fore Charity, and name the Karen Wellington Foundation as their charity of choice.
