

RestoPros of Greater Columbus Achieves IICRC Certification, Reinforcing Commitment to Industry-Leading Restoration Standards

April 14, 2026

April 14, 2026 -
RestoPros of Greater Columbus has achieved certification from the Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration Certification (IICRC), the globally recognized standard-setting organization for the restoration industry. This certification validates the company's adherence to the highest professional standards in water, fire, and mold restoration services throughout the Greater Columbus area.

The IICRC certification process requires restoration companies to demonstrate comprehensive knowledge of industry best practices, proper restoration techniques, and ongoing professional development. RestoPros of Greater Columbus underwent rigorous evaluation of their technical expertise, equipment standards, and operational procedures to earn this distinguished credential.

"Achieving IICRC certification represents our dedication to maintaining the highest standards in the restoration industry," said Caleb Krites, Operations Manager at RestoPros of Greater Columbus. "This certification ensures our customers that our technicians follow proven methodologies and industry-approved protocols when responding to water, fire, or mold emergencies in their homes or businesses."

The certification encompasses multiple restoration disciplines, including water damage restoration, fire and smoke damage restoration, and mold remediation. IICRC-certified firms must demonstrate proficiency in moisture detection, structural drying, contamination control, and proper documentation procedures. Additionally, certified companies commit to ongoing education and training to stay current with evolving industry standards and technologies.

For property owners facing restoration emergencies, working with an IICRC-certified company provides several advantages. Certified technicians understand the science behind proper drying techniques, which helps prevent secondary damage such as mold growth. They also follow standardized procedures that insurance companies recognize, potentially streamlining the claims process for affected property owners.

RestoPros of Greater Columbus provides Water Damage Restoration Services along with fire damage restoration, mold remediation, storm damage response, and complete rebuild services. The company operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, responding to emergency calls throughout Central Ohio. Their team utilizes advanced moisture detection equipment, industrial-grade extraction units, and specialized drying technology to restore properties to pre-damage conditions.

"The IICRC certification reinforces what our clients have experienced firsthand ? that we approach every restoration project with professionalism, technical expertise, and attention to detail," added Krites. "Whether responding to a burst pipe, fire damage, or storm-related flooding, our certified technicians apply industry-approved methods to restore properties efficiently and effectively."

The certification also requires companies to maintain proper insurance coverage, follow ethical business practices, and provide transparent communication with customers throughout the restoration process. These requirements align with the company's existing commitment to customer service and professional integrity.

RestoPros of Greater Columbus serves residential and commercial clients throughout Granville and surrounding communities in Central Ohio. As a veteran-owned business with three decades of combined industry experience, the company has established a reputation for reliable emergency response and quality restoration work. The IICRC certification adds another layer of credibility to their comprehensive restoration services, providing property owners with additional confidence when selecting a restoration partner during challenging times.
