House Cleaning Solutions Broadens Deep Cleaning Availability Across the East Valley

March 23, 2026

MESA, AZ - March 23, 2026 -

House Cleaning Solutions, a residential cleaning company based in Mesa, Arizona, has announced increased availability of its deep cleaning service across its established East Valley service area. The service, which has long been offered to homeowners throughout the region, now has broader scheduling capacity for households in Gilbert, Chandler, Queen Creek, Gold Canyon, Apache Junction, San Tan Valley, Tempe, and Scottsdale. The announcement reflects a broader effort to meet rising demand for detailed residential cleaning as housing activity and home-use patterns continue to evolve across the region.

Established in 2004, House Cleaning Solutions has built its operations around residential care, serving single-family homes and long-term residences rather than short-term or commercial properties. The deep cleaning service is a distinct category within the company?s offerings, designed to address conditions beyond routine home maintenance. While recurring services focus on ongoing upkeep, deep cleaning is intended to provide a comprehensive reset for lived-in or vacant homes that require closer attention.

The deep cleaning service includes detailed treatment of kitchens, bathrooms, bedrooms, and common living areas, with an emphasis on surfaces and areas often missed during regular maintenance. This includes baseboards, interior fixtures, built-up residue in kitchens and bathrooms, and accumulated dust in less accessible areas. The service is structured to account for homes that have experienced extended use, seasonal buildup, or preparation for changes such as listings, move-ins, or extended occupancy.

According to House Cleaning Solutions, increased scheduling availability for this service follows a rise in homeowner requests for more thorough cleaning support. As households balance work, family responsibilities, and more extended periods spent at home, many properties experience a gradual buildup that cannot be resolved by standard routines alone. The deep cleaning service is designed to address those conditions in a single, focused visit.

Virginia Fiacco, owner and manager of House Cleaning Solutions, said the service plays a vital role in maintaining long-term home conditions. ?Deep cleaning is often where homeowners notice the biggest difference in how their space feels,? Virginia Fiacco said. ?It allows the home to return to a baseline that makes regular maintenance easier and more effective afterward.?

The service is delivered using the company?s established three-person team structure. Each team follows a defined scope of work supported by internal checklists and home-specific notes. This approach allows cleaning teams to work systematically through each area of the home while maintaining consistency across visits and properties. The company reports that this structure helps reduce oversight gaps and supports more accurate time planning for larger or more detailed projects.

House Cleaning Solutions distinguishes its deep cleaning service by clearly defining the scope and expectations. The service is intended for residential environments and does not include specialized restoration, hoarding remediation, or commercial-scale work. Instead, it focuses on detailed residential care aligned with everyday home use. By clearly defining the scope, the company aims to deliver predictable outcomes for homeowners while maintaining safety and efficiency for cleaning teams.

The increased availability of deep cleaning appointments across the East Valley aligns with the region's ongoing residential growth. New housing developments, resale activity, and multigenerational living arrangements have increased the need for detailed cleaning at various stages of home use. In many cases, deep cleaning is requested following extended occupancy, before hosting events, or when transitioning between phases of regular home care.

In addition to addressing visible buildup, the service also supports longer-term home maintenance. By removing accumulated dust and residue, homeowners may find it easier to maintain cleanliness between visits. The company notes that many clients use deep cleaning as a starting point before transitioning into a recurring maintenance schedule, though the services are offered independently.

Virginia Fiacco emphasized that the company?s expansion does not involve changes to its operating model. ?The same training, documentation, and quality checks apply regardless of location,? she said. Increasing availability does not change how the work is done or how teams are prepared.?

The company continues to manage scheduling, training, and communication centrally, allowing it to maintain oversight as its service area grows. Homeowners requesting deep cleaning receive an initial assessment to determine the appropriate scope based on home size, condition, and use. This assessment informs both scheduling and preparation, ensuring teams arrive with a clear understanding of the work required.

House Cleaning Solutions has stated that the increased deep cleaning availability will be introduced in phases to ensure staffing levels remain aligned with demand. Existing clients will continue to receive service without disruption, while new clients in surrounding communities will follow the same onboarding and documentation process used in Mesa.

With nearly twenty years of experience in residential cleaning, the company views the expansion of its deep cleaning service as a response to practical homeowner needs rather than a shift in business direction. By increasing access to detailed residential care across the East Valley, House Cleaning Solutions aims to support homeowners seeking thorough, structured cleaning while maintaining the operational consistency that has defined the company since its founding.
