Laiona Moving LLC Implements Structured Handling and Safety Standards Across Residential Services

March 25, 2026

WINTHROP, MA - March 25, 2026 -
Laiona Moving LLC has formally implemented a Structured Handling and Safety Standards Initiative across all residential moving operations in Greater Boston.

The initiative introduces defined internal benchmarks for lifting procedures, load sequencing, equipment inspection, and in-home protection protocols. All in-house employees are required to complete standardized handling instruction prior to assignment on residential projects.

According to company leadership, the decision to formalize safety benchmarks reflects a commitment to reducing preventable damage and maintaining consistent execution across varying building layouts and access conditions, while reinforcing structured processes and clear operational accountability throughout each relocation project.

?Moving requires physical strength, but it also requires discipline,? said Ramy Laribi, owner of Laiona Moving

LLC. ?By establishing uniform handling standards, we ensure that every crew member follows the same structured process regardless of the complexity of the environment.?

The program includes instruction in weight distribution planning, stair navigation procedures, hallway protection placement, and controlled loading methods. Crews assess building access points before unloading equipment to account for narrow staircases, restricted elevator windows, shared entryways, and limited maneuvering space.

Vehicle preparation procedures have also been revised. Trucks are inspected prior to dispatch to confirm availability of padded blankets, shrink wrap, mattress covers, tie-down straps, dollies, and floor runners. Equipment condition is verified before departure to prevent mid-move shortages or substitutions that could compromise safety.

Documented load planning has been incorporated into each assignment. Heavier furniture is sequenced first, weight is stabilized within the vehicle, and tie-down placement is confirmed prior to transit. These measures are intended to reduce shifting risk and maintain controlled transport conditions during relocation.

Workplace safety standards are included in the initiative. Crews receive instruction on body mechanics, team lifting coordination, communication signals for confined spaces, and safe repositioning of oversized items. Internal review checkpoints are conducted after job completion to confirm proper placement and removal of protective materials from shared areas.

The initiative applies to apartment relocations, regional residential moves within New England, packing services, and in-building transitions. All services are performed by direct employees without subcontracted labor. This structure maintains accountability, ensures consistent service standards, and allows each project to be managed with clear oversight from initial coordination through final placement and completion.

Laiona Moving LLC operates daily between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. from its headquarters at 226 Main Street in Winthrop, Massachusetts. Established in 2021, the company provides structured residential relocation services throughout Greater Boston with an emphasis on disciplined handling and operational consistency.

To support consistent execution, crews follow a defined workflow that begins with pre-move planning and ends with a final walkthrough of the property. Each stage is documented to maintain accountability and reduce the likelihood of overlooked details. Before arrival, teams review access conditions, parking limitations, and any building-specific requirements that may affect timing or movement. This preparation allows crews to enter each job with a clear understanding of the environment and expectations.

On-site, attention is given not only to the handling of items but also to the condition of surrounding areas. Protective materials are placed in advance to reduce contact with floors, walls, and entry points. Communication between team members remains structured throughout the move to coordinate lifting, navigation, and placement. After unloading, crews verify item positioning based on client direction and remove all protective materials before departure, leaving shared spaces clear and organized.
