April 07, 2026

GLENDALE, CA - April 07, 2026 -

Big Ben Lawyers has announced the expansion of its legal services for car accident victims throughout Fresno, adding enhanced investigative resources and case management systems to address the growing number of traffic incidents on Highway 99 and other major corridors in the region.

The expansion includes the implementation of advanced electronic filing systems ahead of the Fresno Superior Court's mandatory attorney electronic service requirements scheduled for July 2025. The firm has also increased its investigative capabilities for complex collision cases, including those involving commercial trucks, rideshare vehicles, and multiple-vehicle incidents.

The firm's expanded services encompass representation for drivers, passengers, pedestrians, and cyclists injured in motor vehicle collisions. Fresno Car Accident Attorney services now include specialized handling of rideshare accident claims involving Uber and Lyft, commercial truck collisions, motorcycle accidents, and pedestrian injury cases. The firm operates on a contingency fee basis, meaning clients incur no upfront costs or hourly fees.

According to the California Highway Patrol, State Route 99 through Fresno County recorded over 1,800 collisions in 2023, with fatal accidents increasing by 12 percent compared to the previous year. The highway has been consistently ranked among the most dangerous routes in California by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"The complexity of car accident cases has increased significantly with the rise of rideshare services and commercial traffic on Highway 99," said Benjamin Charchian, Managing Attorney at Big Ben Lawyers. "Our expanded services include immediate accident scene documentation, coordination with medical providers, and comprehensive investigation of all contributing factors. We have adapted our systems to align with upcoming court requirements to ensure efficient case processing."

Fresno Big Ben Lawyers has established protocols for investigating crashes involving gross negligence, including DUI-related collisions. The expansion includes bilingual services in English and Spanish, as well as home consultation options for clients unable to travel due to injuries.

The Central Valley has experienced a 15 percent increase in traffic volume over the past five years, according to Caltrans data, contributing to higher accident rates on major thoroughfares. The Fresno Superior Court processes approximately 3,500 personal injury cases annually, with motor vehicle accidents comprising the majority of filings.

The firm's case management system now incorporates digital evidence preservation, medical record coordination, and insurance claim processing. These enhancements address the increasing complexity of personal injury litigation and evolving court procedures in California.

Fresno Car Accident Lawyers at the firm handle cases ranging from minor collisions to catastrophic injuries involving traumatic brain damage or paralysis. Each case undergoes thorough investigation to establish liability and document damages, including medical expenses, lost wages, and other economic losses.
