

Marshall Pediatric Therapy Expands Behavioral Support Services for Children in Central Kentucky

March 31, 2026

RICHMOND, KY - March 31, 2026 -
Marshall Pediatric Therapy in Richmond has expanded its comprehensive behavioral therapy services to address the increasing demand for pediatric mental health support across Central Kentucky. The multidisciplinary practice, which operates four locations throughout the region, has enhanced its therapeutic offerings to provide integrated care for children facing behavioral, emotional, and developmental challenges.

The expansion comes as pediatric therapy providers nationwide report unprecedented demand for children's mental health services. Marshall Pediatric Therapy's enhanced behavioral support program combines traditional therapeutic approaches with specialized interventions designed to help children develop essential coping skills, improve social interactions, and achieve developmental milestones.

"The need for comprehensive behavioral therapy services has grown significantly in recent years, and we recognized the importance of expanding our capacity to serve more families," said Robin Stepp, Clinical Director at Marshall Pediatric Therapy. "Our integrated approach allows us to address not just the behavioral concerns, but the whole child, considering their physical, emotional, and developmental needs in a coordinated treatment plan."

The expanded services encompass a range of therapeutic interventions, including occupational therapy for sensory processing and daily living skills, speech therapy for communication challenges often associated with behavioral conditions, and specialized mental health counseling. The practice's team of therapists works collaboratively to create individualized treatment plans that address each child's unique needs while supporting the entire family system.

Marshall Pediatric Therapy's approach emphasizes early intervention and family involvement, recognizing that behavioral challenges often impact multiple aspects of a child's life. The practice's therapists are trained in evidence-based techniques for addressing autism spectrum disorders, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, anxiety, and other behavioral and emotional conditions that affect children's daily functioning.

The Richmond location serves as one of four Central Kentucky facilities providing these enhanced services. Each location maintains a warm, patient-centered environment designed to help children feel comfortable and engaged during therapy sessions. The practice's interdisciplinary model ensures that children receiving behavioral therapy can also access physical therapy, speech therapy, and other services as needed without the fragmentation often experienced when seeking care from multiple providers.

"We believe that addressing behavioral challenges requires more than isolated interventions," added Stepp. "By bringing together specialists from different therapeutic disciplines under one roof, we can provide truly comprehensive care that helps children build the skills they need to thrive at home, in school, and in their communities."

Marshall Pediatric Therapy has served Central Kentucky families for years, establishing itself as a trusted resource for pediatric therapeutic services. The practice's commitment to excellence in pediatric care extends beyond direct therapy services to include family education and support, helping parents and caregivers understand their child's needs and implement therapeutic strategies at home. With locations in Richmond, Nicholasville, Lexington, and Georgetown, the practice continues to expand its reach to ensure that children throughout Central Kentucky have access to high-quality therapeutic services.
