Diamond Soirée Announces Rapid Jewelry Repair and Resizing Services

March 30, 2026

CHICAGO, IL - March 30, 2026 -
Diamond Soirée has announced its jewelry repair and resizing services as part of its ongoing support for fine jewelry maintenance. As a jewelry store in Chicago, IL, the company handles resizing and mending work on-site for lab-grown diamond pieces and other items in its collections.

Industry data shows that standard jewelry resizing and repair turnaround times typically range from three to seven business days for most jewelers, with some complex jobs extending to one or two weeks. Diamond Soirée reports completing many resizing tasks in less than 24 hours based on customer experiences, while mending items such as broken necklaces is described as swift. These timelines reflect the company's operational approach in its downtown location.

The services are available at the showroom situated in Chicago's historic Jewelers Row. This position provides convenient access for customers via multiple CTA lines, including the Pink, Green, Orange, Brown, and Blue Lines at the Washington/Wabash station. The area also offers valet parking and nearby garages, supporting drop-off and pickup of items needing adjustment or repair.

Diamond Soirée stocks more than 1,000 certified lab-grown diamonds used in its necklaces, earrings, rings, bracelets, and bands. The same facilities that support diamond creation and custom design also accommodate after-sales work. Customers can bring in pieces for size adjustments, shape modifications, or mending to restore functionality and appearance.

Pieces purchased for more than $1,000 include a lifetime warranty focused on keeping the jewelry looking polished. This coverage applies to qualifying items and supports regular maintenance to preserve brilliance and condition. Details regarding specific conditions or exclusions for the warranty are handled during consultations at the store.

Parin Moradiya, Owner of Diamond Soirée, stated, "Our repair and resizing services allow customers to maintain their jewelry over time through on-site work that addresses common needs such as adjustments and mending."

The company operates as a family-run business with capabilities that extend from initial diamond production to final assembly and subsequent care. This structure enables consistent handling of maintenance requests without external dependencies in many cases. Secure payment options remain available for any associated service fees, and worldwide shipping support continues for customers who purchased items online.

Additional context from the broader market indicates that repair services form a steady part of jewelry retail operations, with many providers emphasizing after-sales care to support long-term ownership. Diamond Soirée integrates these services into its model, which centers on ethical lab-grown materials and personalized attention.

Parin Moradiya added, "By offering repair and resizing alongside our core offerings, we provide a complete experience for individuals who value both the acquisition and the continued care of their jewelry pieces."

The lab-grown diamond sector continues to develop, with consumers showing interest in options that combine quality with sustainability. Diamond Soirée's maintenance services align with this by helping preserve the integrity of such pieces through routine and specialized work. The showroom environment facilitates consultations where staff can discuss specific repair requirements and expected timelines on a case-by-case basis.

As part of its operations, the company supports both local Chicago clients and those from farther locations through its repair capabilities and delivery network. Free shipping applies to qualifying online orders over $500, with insured and certified shipments arranged as needed. These elements contribute to the overall framework of service that includes acquisition, customization, and maintenance.

Diamond Soirée is a family-operated luxury jewelry store specializing in lab-grown diamonds. The company crafts custom and ready-made pieces using certified stones and ethical materials while providing associated services such as repair and resizing to support the full lifecycle of its jewelry.
