May 17, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Dr. David S. Levine, MD, who is based in New York, New York, has announced that he has received a promotion from Assistant Attending to Associate Attending Orthopaedic Surgeon at the Hospital for Special Surgery. His office is located at 523 East 72nd Street - #509 New York, NY 10021. He states that he is honored to have received this latest promotion.

"My goal is to provide excellent patient care," says Dr. Levine. "Seeing a patient walking in following treatment and getting a sense that their life has been restored is really the greatest privilege."

Dr. Levine was born and raised on Long Island, and graduated from Cornell University with an All Subjects degree in 1988. He received his medical degree in 1992 from Weill Cornell Medical College. Dr. Levine began his residency in orthopedic surgery at New York's Hospital for Special Surgery, where he completed his residency in 1997. He went on to perform his Fellowship Training in Orthopedic Trauma and Reconstructive Surgery of the Foot and Ankle at the Harborview Medical Center University of Washington Medical Center in Seattle.

Those interested in learning more about Dr. Levine can find qualifications, credentials, and additional information on his official website.

He adds, "I was a Cornell undergraduate, a Weill Cornell medical student, and an HSS resident. It is an honor to now be promoted from assistant attending to associate attending physician at an institution that I have the utmost respect for."

Dr. Levine treats many foot and ankle conditions. His promotion comes after years of providing patients with quality orthopedic care. Those having problems with their foot or ankle, can contact his office to take a step toward restoring their quality of life.

Those interested in an orthopedic foot and ankle consultation can visit Dr. Levine's official website to learn more about the specific range of services that he offers, or to schedule an appointment. Information can also be found on his Facebook page here.
