LAKE ELMO, MN - March 30, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Kringle Workshops continues to offer its collection of handmade wooden toys as enduring options for wooden Christmas gifts during the holiday season. The Minnesota-based workshop produces each item by hand, emphasizing craftsmanship that creates pieces suitable for family gifting and long-term use.

The lineup features a variety of vehicle-themed toys constructed from pine, oak, and birch woods. Items include the Pickup Truck & Horse Trailer, which incorporates dual rear wheels and a pivoting ramp on the trailer for interactive play. Other offerings encompass the Wooden Bobcat for construction scenarios, the Pickup Truck / Camper with Boat for adventure setups, and the Flatbed Tow Truck with Car for rescue themes. Farm-oriented pieces such as the Tractor, Combine, and Logging Truck provide representations of agricultural equipment, while the Dump Truck, Excavator, and Train support imaginative transport and building activities.

These toys are assembled using water-based glue and dowels, with all surfaces sanded smooth and edges rounded to prioritize safety for children ages three and older. The unfinished natural wood finish preserves the material's eco-friendly qualities and allows the unique grain patterns to remain visible. Each piece carries a wood-burned Kringle Elf logo, signifying its origin from the home workshop.

Tom Bethke, the founder and craftsman of Kringle Workshops, noted the role these items play in holiday traditions. "Handmade wooden toys provide a meaningful way for families to share gifts that encourage creativity and can become part of holiday memories over many years," said Bethke. "The focus remains on creating durable pieces that families can rely on season after season."

The workshop's approach aligns with a broader interest in sustainable, battery-free playthings that support open-ended play. By avoiding electronic components, the toys direct attention toward child-led storytelling and physical interaction. Custom requests are accommodated, allowing adjustments to designs while upholding the established standards of construction and materials.

Additional products in the collection include vehicles like the Classic Hot Rod Car, Fire Truck, Garbage Truck, and Monster Truck, expanding choices for different play preferences. These items share the same commitment to sturdy builds and detailed features, such as rotating wheels and functional elements where appropriate.

Kringle Workshops positions its creations as heirloom-quality gifts suitable for Christmas and other occasions. The handmade process, from initial wood selection through final assembly, ensures individual attention to each toy. This method contributes to their appeal as thoughtful presents that stand apart from mass-produced alternatives.

Bethke added context on the workshop's ongoing work. "Producing these toys in a small home setting allows for careful oversight at every step, resulting in pieces that hold up to active use and retain their appeal over time," he said. "It is rewarding to see families incorporate them into their holiday routines."

The emphasis on natural materials and American craftsmanship supports the workshop's mission to deliver toys that foster imagination without environmental drawbacks from synthetic components or coatings. Free shipping on all orders facilitates access for families across the country seeking distinctive holiday options.

As the holiday period approaches, Kringle Workshops maintains its dedication to crafting items that combine practicality with lasting value. The consistent quality across the product range reflects years of refinement in design and execution.

Kringle Workshops is a small business operated by Tom Bethke, who draws inspiration from family woodworking traditions. The company specializes in handmade wooden toys crafted in a home workshop using sustainable woods like pine, oak, and birch. Each toy is designed for durability, safety, and imaginative play, with no batteries required, making them appropriate for children ages three and up as well as suitable wooden Christmas gifts for families valuing quality and tradition.
