WOODBURY, MN - March 31, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Warner's Outdoor Solutions has emphasized its hardscaping capabilities as part of its comprehensive landscaping design and installation services for properties in the Twin Cities metro area. The company constructs durable hardscaping features that establish functional and aesthetic foundations for outdoor spaces in residential and commercial settings throughout Minneapolis, St. Paul, and surrounding communities.

Hardscaping in the Twin Cities includes the installation of patios, walkways, retaining walls, and fire pits designed to address specific site requirements. Retaining walls manage grade changes and provide structural support, while patios create defined outdoor living areas. Walkways facilitate movement across properties, and fire pits serve as central gathering points. The company also builds pergolas and incorporates water features where appropriate to complement the overall landscape configuration.

Material choices reflect considerations for Minnesota's climate, including freeze-thaw cycles common in the region. Air-entrained concrete pavers often receive preference for their durability in these conditions compared to traditional poured concrete. Segmental retaining wall systems incorporate proper drainage to maintain long-term stability. Granite and natural stone selections appear in various applications to align with design goals.

The company performs ongoing hardscaping maintenance to preserve installed features. Regular inspections identify potential issues such as joint settling in patios or shifts in retaining walls. These efforts support the longevity of hardscaping elements amid seasonal weather variations.

Projects completed by Warner's Outdoor Solutions demonstrate varied applications of hardscaping. Installations frequently combine paver patios with fire pits or retaining walls, creating functional and aesthetically pleasing outdoor spaces. Other examples feature pergolas integrated with paved surfaces or standalone retaining wall systems with steps. These combinations illustrate how hardscaping components seamlessly work together within broader landscape designs, enhancing outdoor living experiences for homeowners.

Ryan Warner, President of Warner's Outdoor Solutions, stated, "In the Twin Cities, we have to choose hardscaping materials that can handle those repeated freeze-thaw cycles if we want the structures to perform and last." He added, "Adding solid drainage to retaining walls and paver installations makes a big difference in getting reliable, long-term results for properties around the metro area."

Hardscaping integrates with the company's additional services to deliver complete outdoor solutions. Lawn care programs encompass mowing, fertilization, weed control, aeration, dethatching, and overseeding to maintain surrounding turf areas. Irrigation systems, including smart controllers, start-up, repairs, and winterization, manage water distribution around hardscaped zones. Pest control addresses potential intrusions, while winter services such as snow plowing, brine applications, salt spreading, and ice melt treatments protect hardscaping features during cold months.

The Twin Cities metro area's expanding residential and commercial development has increased demand for integrated outdoor enhancements. Hardscaping addresses functional needs such as accessible pathways and level gathering spaces while supporting property value through structured landscapes. The company's approach aligns with regional requirements for durable, low-maintenance outdoor features, ensuring long-lasting aesthetics and functionality.

Warner's Outdoor Solutions bases its operations in Woodbury, Minnesota, and extends services throughout virtually the entire Twin Cities metro area, including Minneapolis, St. Paul, Lakeville, Minnetonka, Blaine, and many other beautiful communities. Trained professionals handle projects from initial design through installation and maintenance, bringing creativity, knowledge, and expertise to every endeavor.
