

Delta Roofing Expands Roof Repair Services Across South Carolina?s Lowcountry

April 13, 2026

RIDGELAND, SC - April 13, 2026 -
Delta Roofing, a locally owned roofing contractor based in Ridgeland, South Carolina, announced expanded roof repair availability to meet rising demand following recent weather events across the Lowcountry.

Located at 498 Browns Cove Rd., #8, Ridgeland, SC 29936, the company serves Ridgeland, Hilton Head Island, Bluffton, and Beaufort with roof installation, repairs, and maintenance for residential and commercial properties. The expansion responds to increased reports of roof issues caused by heavy rainfall and gusty coastal winds.

For homeowners and property managers searching for roof repair after a storm, Delta Roofing provides responsive scheduling, detailed assessments, and guidance throughout the insurance claims process.

Delta Roofing indicated that it has staff trained in roof repair for structures affected by heavy rain and wind stress. Lifted shingles, water penetration, and deteriorated flashing around vents and chimneys are among the most common issues found during post-event inspections. The company?s professional roofers conduct comprehensive examinations to identify these issues and assist property owners with insurance documentation during the claims process.

This roof repair program aligns with ongoing recovery efforts in the Lowcountry, where high humidity, salt air, and frequent weather systems can accelerate roof degradation. Delta Roofing?s enhanced repair methods address a broad range of needs, from basic fixes to major restorations.

?Our goal is to provide thorough assessments that help clients navigate recovery efficiently,? said Richard Blyudzhyus, owner and founder of Delta Roofing.

Prior to this development, Delta Roofing maintained a consistent presence in meeting the region?s roofing needs, influenced by UV exposure and ocean proximity. Blyudzhyus emphasized the need for prompt response to help maintain the structural integrity of homes and businesses. Delta Roofing?s roofers follow updated safety protocols informed by years of local experience in the Lowcountry.

Delta Roofing serves areas prone to weather-related roof concerns, such as granule loss (often visible in gutters) and warped or soft decking. Recent inquiries from property managers have highlighted early signs of wear?such as algae discoloration or small punctures?that require prompt roof repair to prevent escalation. Thorough on-site examinations help uncover hidden vulnerabilities, preserving property value and safety in wind-prone places like Bluffton. ?Identifying these early signs prevents escalation into costlier repairs, which is why we emphasize proactive inspections for all properties,? added Blyudzhyus.

In the Lowcountry, roofing demands continue to evolve with recurring precipitation events. Delta Roofing?s team continually trains on modern materials suited for coastal durability. Homeowners and commercial operators now benefit from increased roof repair capacity, supporting community resilience through professional standards.

Delta Roofing operates from its Ridgeland base, allowing the company to respond more efficiently when demand increases after major storms, seasonal weather events, or periods of high repair activity. With a central operating location, the team is positioned to coordinate inspections, schedule projects, and deploy roofing crews across its service areas with greater consistency. This local presence also supports more accessible communication for property owners who need timely updates or prompt service. Throughout these peak periods, Delta Roofing continues to emphasize efficient project management and licensed roofing services for the communities it serves.

The company provides roof installation, replacement, emergency roof repair, and roof maintenance for residential and commercial properties. Beyond Ridgeland, Delta Roofing also serves Beaufort County, Hilton Head, Bluffton, Okatie, Jasper County, and Hardeeville.
