

STAPLERMAXX Reports Surge in Electric Stacker and Forklift Rentals Across Swiss Logistics Sector

April 15, 2026

OFTRINGEN, CH - April 15, 2026 -
STAPLERMAXX, the Swiss material handling equipment provider, reports significant growth in rental demand for electric forklifts and pallet trucks from logistics, manufacturing, and e-commerce fulfillment operations throughout Switzerland. The trend reflects broader industry shifts toward flexible equipment solutions and sustainable warehouse operations.

The increased rental activity spans electric three-wheel and four-wheel forklifts, electric stackers, and pallet trucks, with businesses across Switzerland's industrial sectors seeking alternatives to traditional purchasing models. Manufacturing facilities, distribution centers, and e-commerce fulfillment operations are driving the demand as they navigate seasonal fluctuations and evaluate electric equipment before making long-term commitments.

Swiss businesses are discovering that rental programs provide immediate access to modern electric equipment while maintaining operational flexibility. The ability to scale equipment fleets up or down based on actual operational needs has become particularly valuable for companies managing variable workloads and seasonal peaks.

The rental trend coincides with Switzerland's broader transition toward electric material handling equipment. Companies are increasingly prioritizing environmental responsibility while seeking to reduce operational costs associated with diesel and LPG-powered equipment. Electric forklifts and stackers offer lower operating expenses, reduced maintenance requirements, and compliance with increasingly stringent environmental regulations in Swiss industrial facilities.

STAPLERMAXX Oftringen maintains a comprehensive rental fleet including electric forklifts ranging from 1.3 to 5.0 ton capacity, electric scissor lifts, telescopic handlers, and various pallet truck configurations. The company's 6,000 square meter central warehouse ensures immediate equipment availability for businesses requiring rapid deployment.

The rental program extends beyond equipment provision to include comprehensive support services. Each rental unit undergoes Swisslifter-certified safety inspections, with ongoing maintenance and spare parts support provided throughout the rental period. This full-service approach enables businesses to focus on operations rather than equipment management.

E-commerce growth has particularly influenced rental demand patterns. Fulfillment centers and distribution operations require flexible equipment solutions to manage peak periods without the capital investment of permanent fleet expansion. The ability to quickly add electric stackers and pallet trucks during high-volume periods has proven essential for maintaining service levels.

Manufacturing operations are utilizing rental programs to test electric equipment integration into existing workflows. The opportunity to evaluate different forklift models and configurations before purchase decisions helps companies optimize their material handling strategies while minimizing financial risk.

For businesses seeking STAPLERMAXX contact information or equipment consultation, the company provides comprehensive assessment services to determine optimal equipment configurations for specific operational requirements.

STAPLERMAXX specializes in lifting and conveying technology, offering sales, rental, and service solutions for material handling equipment throughout Switzerland. The company partners with leading manufacturers including HANGCHA FORKLIFTS and maintains membership in the Swiss Hubstapler Verband Swisslifter. From its Oftringen facility, the company provides immediate delivery capabilities, certified safety inspections, comprehensive spare parts inventory, and environmental sustainability programs including battery recycling services for electric equipment.
