A.J. Klein Jewelers Opened at New Fountain Square Location

April 10, 2026

SHELTON, CT - April 10, 2026 -
A.J. Klein Jewelers has opened at its new location in the Fountain Square Shopping Center in Shelton, CT, following a relocation from its previous site. The move concludes more than 43 years at the former Shelton Square address and marks a new chapter for the family-owned business.

As a jewelry store in Shelton, CT, A.J. Klein Jewelers continues to offer the same range of services from the updated facility. The store maintains its focus on fine jewelry selections, custom designs, and repair work. Customers can now access these offerings at the Fountain Square address, which provides enhanced space for consultations and on-site services.

The business, established in 1992, has operated continuously in the local area. Its inventory includes pieces from designer partnerships such as Gabriel & Co., Uneek Fine Jewelry, and LaFonn. These collaborations supply options for diamonds, bridal sets, and other jewelry categories. Staff members assist with selections by reviewing available materials and styles during in-person visits.

Custom design services remain a core component at the new site. Clients bring in ideas or existing items for modification, such as resetting stones from heirlooms into revised settings. This process involves initial consultations to outline preferences and incorporates standard jewelry techniques to complete the work.

Repair capabilities address everyday needs, including ring resizing, polishing, and fixes for broken chains or clasps. Watch services cover battery replacements and adjustments. Appraisals produce documented evaluations based on industry standards, supporting insurance or valuation requirements.

The relocation occurred after preparation that included a moving sale at the prior location. Operations transferred smoothly to the new facility, allowing uninterrupted service for clients. The Fountain Square site supports the store's community role, with continued availability of ear piercing alongside jewelry transactions.

One customer shared details of a recent interaction involving guidance on a custom piece, describing the staff's methodical review of options. Such accounts reflect routine experiences at the store.

Over its history, A.J. Klein Jewelers has handled jewelry across life events, from proposals to anniversaries. Selections for engagement rings and wedding bands draw on knowledge of diamond attributes, including cut and clarity. Materials such as white gold and platinum feature in available collections.

Heirloom modifications represent a specialized offering. Family pieces undergo updates that integrate modern elements while preserving original components. This service requires coordinated planning between clients and staff to achieve the intended results.

The new location maintains on-site repair capacity, facilitating efficient turnaround for many tasks. Appraisals follow established protocols to ensure accurate documentation. Inventory at the Fountain Square store includes periodic additions from designer lines, spanning classic and contemporary influences.

Spring timing for the opening aligns with seasonal activity in jewelry selections. The facility accommodates consultations in a refreshed environment while retaining the business's established service model.

"Opening at Fountain Square allows us to continue serving the community from a modernized space," said Alan Klein, owner of A.J. Klein Jewelers. "The transition preserves our approach to jewelry care at every stage."

Custom projects at the store sometimes combine elements from multiple sources into a single design. This method supports requests that blend heritage with updated aesthetics. Chain and fitting repairs use conventional restoration methods as part of the full-service operations.

The business has adapted to local needs since its founding. Staff prioritizes handling individual requirements through direct engagement at the new address.

"This relocation positions the store to meet ongoing demands while upholding the same standards," said Alan Klein, owner of A.J. Klein Jewelers. "It reflects our commitment to long-term service in Shelton."
