April 14, 2016

April 14, 2016 -
Based in Columbus, Ohio, Columbus Heating and Cooling has announced new services. The company now offers a wide range of HVAC services, including air conditioning sales, setup, and repairs.

Michael Sullivan, a spokesperson for the company says, "We are pleased to announce services for our customers in the Columbus area. From setting up your air conditioner to whole house humidifiers, we're on the job to make your life more comfortable."

The company provides residential, commercial, and industrial cooling and heating services. Sullivan states that they can also offer services for geothermal warmth pumps as well as high performance AC system upgrades.

"Basically, if it has to do with heating or cooling systems, we have you covered," Sullivan says.

He states that they are offering services for house standby generators as well as drain and drainpipe repair services, duct cleaning for heating and air systems, industrial refrigeration repairs and maintenance, and a long list of additional services for area customers. Those looking for more info can visit the company on their official website.

Columbus Heating and Cooling has been providing a range of services to the Columbus area for quite some time. Sullivan states that their newest range of HVAC services are designed to help home and business owners get the repairs and installations that they need, and at prices that are more than just a bit competitive.

The company states that they hire only the most qualified service technicians and that all of their techs are highly trained and educated on the latest techniques in the industry. Sullivan says that even the office staff have knowledge of the heating and cooling industry so that when someone calls, they can be assisted to the very best of the company's ability.

The company invites those interested to visit them on their official website and learn more about the new range of services that they are now offering. Serving Columbus area home, business, and corporate customers, the HVAC company states that they offer only the best in services combined with educated and knowledgeable technicians and an overall customer first attitude that they hope will help them to remain in business for many years into the future.
