

Neal & Solevilla Personal Injury Lawyers Expands Focus on Rideshare Accident Cases Amid Rising Claims

April 15, 2026

Clearwater, FL - April 15, 2026 -
Neal & Solevilla Personal Injury Lawyers, a Clearwater-based personal injury law firm, has expanded its legal services to address the growing number of rideshare accident claims in Florida. The firm reports a significant increase in consultations related to accidents involving rideshare vehicles, reflecting broader trends in transportation-related injuries across the state.

The expansion comes as rideshare services continue to transform urban transportation while presenting new challenges for accident victims seeking compensation. Traditional insurance claim processes often become complicated when rideshare vehicles are involved, as multiple insurance policies and liability questions can create obstacles for injured parties.

Neal & Solevilla Personal Injury Lawyers' rideshare accident lawyer services now include comprehensive case evaluation, evidence gathering, and negotiations with multiple insurance carriers typically involved in rideshare accident claims. The firm handles cases involving both passengers and third parties injured in collisions with rideshare vehicles.

"The complexity of rideshare accident cases requires specialized knowledge of both state regulations and the specific insurance structures these companies use," said Katherine C. Neal, Managing Partner at Neal & Solevilla Personal Injury Lawyers. "Many accident victims don't realize that the coverage available and the claims process can vary significantly depending on whether the driver was logged into the app, waiting for a ride request, or actively transporting a passenger at the time of the accident."

Recent data from the Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles indicates that accidents involving rideshare vehicles have increased alongside the growth of these services. The firm's expanded focus addresses cases ranging from minor injuries to severe accidents resulting in long-term medical care needs.

The legal team at Neal & Solevilla examines each case to determine applicable insurance coverage, which may include the rideshare driver's personal insurance, the rideshare company's contingent coverage, or commercial liability policies. This multi-layered approach helps ensure clients understand their options for seeking compensation for medical expenses, lost wages, and other damages.

Beyond rideshare accidents, Neal & Solevilla Personal Injury Lawyers maintains its comprehensive personal injury practice, representing clients in cases involving car accidents, motorcycle accidents, trucking accidents, bicycle accidents, and premises liability claims. The firm also handles cases involving brain injuries, spinal cord injuries, and wrongful death claims.

The firm's approach emphasizes thorough investigation and documentation of each case, working with accident reconstruction specialists and medical professionals when necessary to build strong claims for their clients. This comprehensive strategy has become particularly important in rideshare cases, where determining liability often requires a detailed analysis of driver logs, app data, and witness statements.

Neal & Solevilla Personal Injury Lawyers was founded by attorneys Katherine C. Neal and Melissa D. Solevilla. The firm serves clients throughout the Clearwater area and surrounding communities, providing legal representation for individuals and families affected by personal injuries caused by negligence.
