April 21, 2026

NEW RICHMOND, WI - April 21, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

FNC Bank maintains its position as a dedicated partner to Wisconsin businesses, highlighted by its receipt of the 2022 SBA Lender Award for the most approved 7(a) programs in its asset category in the state. The bank, as an approved SBA partner, provides access to government-backed business support options alongside conventional commercial services to address a range of operational and growth needs.

These SBA programs offer qualified businesses structured pathways for capital access with features that include competitive terms and extended repayment structures compared to standard options. The support extends to purposes such as operational funding requirements, equipment needs, property-related projects, construction initiatives, and management of existing obligations. The bank's established expertise in navigating these government programs contributes to streamlined processes for businesses seeking to strengthen their position or adapt to changing conditions.

Complementing the SBA pathways, FNC Bank delivers tailored commercial services designed to align with specific business objectives. Options include support for startup activities, inventory management, investments in machinery and technology, facility enhancements, property acquisitions and developments, building or renovation projects, and flexible arrangements for ongoing operational demands. The bank's approach emphasizes direct engagement between experienced team members and business clients to develop solutions that fit individual circumstances and regional economic realities in Wisconsin.

This collaborative method draws on the institution's deep understanding of local market dynamics and long-standing commitment to community economic vitality. By maintaining active participation in SBA initiatives and a broad array of commercial resources, FNC Bank helps facilitate the conditions necessary for business stability and expansion across diverse sectors.

Scott Soderberg, CEO of FNC Bank, said, "FNC Bank's participation in SBA programs and conventional commercial services reflects a consistent effort to provide Wisconsin businesses with reliable pathways to the resources needed for growth and sustainability."

Soderberg added, "Through structured options and hands-on guidance, the bank assists companies in navigating decisions that support their specific operational and strategic priorities."

The bank's recognition in SBA programs stems from its track record of successful outcomes and client-focused service in these specialized areas. The 2022 award acknowledges the volume of approved 7(a) programs, demonstrating the institution's capacity to effectively connect businesses with government-backed resources within its size category.

Educational resources available through the bank, including discussions on financial topics relevant to business management and operational considerations, contribute to broader awareness among commercial clients. Recent materials address subjects such as common misconceptions in financial planning and the role of technology in modern banking operations, offering factual information that supports informed decision-making.

The dedication to business support occurs within the framework of community banking, where local institutions play a key role in facilitating resource availability for regional enterprises operating under varied economic conditions. FNC Bank's ongoing involvement helps foster conditions conducive to economic activity, job opportunities, and overall financial resilience in Wisconsin's business community.

Recent completion of a digital transformation initiative has further enhanced the bank's ability to deliver these services through improved platforms that streamline access and management for commercial clients. The enhancements build on the institution's foundation of trusted relationships and efficient processes.

FNC Bank operates as a locally owned, third-generation community bank with more than 100 years of service in Wisconsin. The institution provides a comprehensive selection of personal and business banking services,
