August 01, 2026 -

CENTURY 21 ClearView Realty has announced the expansion of military relocation services offered by agent Lorenzo Bell-Thomas, addressing the specific housing needs of service members transitioning to Ellsworth Air Force Base in the Rapid City, South Dakota area. The expanded services include VA loan guidance, expedited transaction processes, and detailed neighborhood analysis tailored to military families.

The initiative responds to increased demand for specialized real estate services as military families navigate relocations to the Black Hills region. Bell-Thomas, a retired Master Sergeant who served over 20 years in the United States Air Force Fire and Emergency Services, has structured these services to accommodate the compressed timelines often associated with military transfers.

"Military families face unique challenges when relocating, particularly with the time constraints of permanent change of station orders," said Lorenzo Bell-Thomas, Real Estate Agent at CENTURY 21 ClearView Realty.

"The expanded services provide structured support throughout the entire relocation process, from initial property searches to closing documentation."

The enhanced military relocation program incorporates several key components designed to streamline the home buying process. These include pre-arrival virtual property tours, coordination with base housing offices, and connections to local resources for transitioning families. The program also provides detailed information about school districts, commute times to Ellsworth Air Force Base, and community amenities relevant to military families.

Bell-Thomas's approach to Excellence In Residential Real Estate extends beyond military relocations to serve the broader Rapid City market. His services encompass buyer representation with access to the Black Hills MLS Property Search, seller representation utilizing professional photography and virtual tour technology, and market analysis for both residential and commercial properties.

The Rapid City real estate market has experienced sustained activity driven by the area's economic stability and proximity to outdoor recreation opportunities. Recent market data indicates continued demand for properties near military installations, with inventory levels requiring strategic approaches for both buyers and sellers navigating current conditions.

CENTURY 21 ClearView Realty has integrated technology platforms to support these expanded services, including the Homebot financial dashboard that provides homeowners with real-time data on home values and equity positions. The company's digital tools complement traditional real estate services, offering property searches across multiple South Dakota communities including Deadwood, Hill City, Keystone, and Rapid City.

Bell-Thomas has been recognized as the Best Real Estate Agent In Rapid City South Dakota, a designation that reflects his focus on military and civilian real estate transactions in the region.

The expanded military relocation services are available immediately to all active duty, reserve, and retired military personnel relocating to the Rapid City area. CENTURY 21 ClearView Realty continues to maintain offices in Rapid City, providing real estate services throughout the Black Hills region of South Dakota. His recent recognition as Top Rated Real Estate Agent In Rapid City South Dakota 2026 coincides with the expansion of these specialized services.
