

RestoPros of North Boston Responds to Surge in Water Damage Calls from April Rainfall

June 03, 2026

NORTH BOSTON, MA - June 03, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

RestoPros of North Boston reports a significant increase in emergency water damage calls throughout the greater North Boston area as heavy April rainfall continues to saturate soil and force water through basement foundations across the region.

The restoration company has seen a marked uptick in service requests from homeowners discovering water intrusion issues that have been developing undetected. Many property owners remain unaware that common signs such as efflorescence on basement walls, musty odors, and damp concrete spots after rain indicate serious water intrusion problems rather than normal seasonal moisture. The company specializes in comprehensive water damage detection and restoration services, responding to emergency calls within 60 minutes at any time of day or night.

"Homeowners often dismiss early warning signs as typical spring dampness, but these indicators point to active water intrusion that requires immediate attention," said Paul Burns, Operations Director at RestoPros of North Boston. "We recently responded to a property in Malden where slow water intrusion had gone unnoticed until hardwood floors began warping and bathroom walls showed significant moisture damage, with our meter readings reaching maximum levels at 100. What started as minor seepage became a major restoration project."

The current weather pattern has created particularly challenging conditions for properties throughout North Boston and surrounding communities. Extended periods of rainfall have oversaturated the ground, increasing hydrostatic pressure against foundation walls and overwhelming drainage systems. This combination frequently leads to basement flooding and foundation seepage that can cause extensive structural damage if not addressed promptly.

RestoPros of North Boston emphasizes that rapid response remains critical in minimizing damage and restoration costs. The company's emergency response team utilizes advanced moisture detection equipment to identify hidden water damage and implement immediate mitigation strategies. Their comprehensive approach includes water extraction, structural drying, antimicrobial treatment, and full reconstruction services when necessary. Their certified technicians handle all aspects of water damage remediation, from initial water extraction and flood cuts to complete drywall water damage restoration and flooring reconstruction.

"Every hour counts when dealing with water damage," added Burns. "Delaying professional intervention dramatically increases remediation costs and the risk of secondary damage including mold growth. What might cost a few thousand dollars to address immediately can escalate to tens of thousands within days."

The restoration company maintains partnerships with insurance providers and assists property owners throughout the claims process, documenting damage and providing detailed restoration estimates. Their technicians follow Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration Certification guidelines to ensure proper remediation standards.

RestoPros of North Boston serves Arlington, Cambridge, Lynn, Lynnfield, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Nahant, North Reading, Reading, Saugus, Somerville, Stoneham, Wakefield, and Winchester. The company brings 30 years of combined industry experience to each restoration project, specializing in water damage, fire and smoke damage, mold remediation, and storm damage restoration services for both residential and commercial properties.
