April 15, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

ThermoVision, a clinic in Indianapolis, IN, is proud to announce that they provide breast thermography services. These services are designed to help women detect changes to their breasts more quickly than self-examination or mammograms can do. Through this, the clinic aims to help improve breast cancer survival rates thanks to early detection.

Genie Goykhberg from ThermoVision says: "The benefit of breast thermography is that it offers the opportunity of earlier detection of breast cancer than has been possible through breast self examination, doctor examination or mammography alone. It comes courtesy of The American College of Clinical Thermology. It can also be used on other parts of the body, and by men and women alike."

The clinic offers a number of thermography options. They offer the female health screening scan, the female full body scan, the male health screening scan, the male full body scan, the head, neck, and thyroid scan, the arms and hands scan, and the legs and feet scan. Additionally, patients can request for a scan of a specific area of concern. These services are all offered in the modern, comfortable, and welcoming clinic on River Crossing.

Those who book for an appointment are asked to prepare themselves properly. The clinic has released online forms that people can complete in order to highlight which scan they are interested in. All scans are performed by certified clinical thermographers.

The clinic has also launched their Facebook page on <https://www.facebook.com/thermographyIndianapolis>. This page enables people to remain up to date with relevant news, and also allows them to contact the clinic and speak to others who have gone through the various scans. Additionally, it provides people with an opportunity to leave reviews about their experiences, something that many have already done. "I recently experienced thermography at ThermoVision for the first time and was truly impressed with how insightful Genie was and how comfortable she made me feel during the session," says Karla R.E. "She is a wonderful practitioner with a true heart for educating people about health. If you have not had the opportunity to have a scan conducted, I would encourage you to visit ThermoVision - I am glad I did and am sure you will be so, too!"
