

Next Level Decks and Exteriors Expands Cedar Siding Installation Services to Meet Growing Demand

April 29, 2026

Tigard, Oregon - April 29, 2026 -
Next Level Decks and Exteriors, a Tigard-based exterior contracting company, has expanded its cedar siding installation services in response to increased homeowner interest in durable, natural wood exterior solutions throughout the Portland metropolitan area.

The expansion comes as more property owners seek sustainable and aesthetically appealing alternatives to traditional vinyl and composite siding materials. Cedar siding, known for its natural resistance to moisture, insects, and decay, has seen renewed interest among homeowners looking for long-lasting exterior upgrades that enhance both property value and curb appeal.

"We've observed a significant shift in customer preferences toward natural materials that offer both durability and environmental benefits," said Michael from Next Level Decks and Exteriors. "Cedar siding provides exceptional insulation properties, natural weather resistance, and a timeless aesthetic that complements Pacific Northwest architecture. Our expanded services allow us to meet this growing demand while maintaining our commitment to quality craftsmanship."

The company's enhanced cedar siding services include comprehensive installation for residential properties, replacement of existing siding systems, and restoration of weathered cedar exteriors. Each project incorporates proper moisture barrier installation, precision fitting techniques, and finishing treatments designed to maximize the material's natural longevity in Oregon's climate.

Next Level Decks and Exteriors cedar siding installation process emphasizes attention to detail at every stage, from initial assessment through final inspection. The company's technicians undergo specialized training in cedar-specific installation methods, ensuring proper ventilation, moisture management, and structural integrity for each project.

Cedar siding offers distinct advantages in the Pacific Northwest climate, including natural oils that repel water and resist fungal growth without chemical treatments. The material's cellular structure provides superior insulation compared to many synthetic alternatives, potentially reducing heating and cooling costs for homeowners. Additionally, cedar's dimensional stability minimizes warping and splitting issues common with other wood products.

The expansion of cedar siding services complements the company's existing exterior renovation offerings, which include pergola builder, deck installation, fence installation, and comprehensive dry rot repair. This integrated approach allows property owners to coordinate multiple exterior improvements while working with a single contractor familiar with local building codes and climate considerations.

Next Level Decks and Exteriors serves residential clients throughout Washington and Multnomah counties, including Beaverton, Tigard, Portland, Lake Oswego, and Tualatin. The company maintains a limited lifetime warranty on all installations and provides detailed project timelines and cost estimates before beginning any work.

Established as a premier exterior contracting firm in the Portland area, Next Level Decks and Exteriors specializes in transforming outdoor spaces through custom design solutions and quality craftsmanship. The company focuses on using high-grade materials and proven construction techniques to ensure long-lasting results for deck building, patio covers, fencing, siding, and related exterior improvements.
