

Wilkins RV Schedules Safety and Towing Tips Workshops at Waterloo Location

April 28, 2026

WATERLOO, NY - April 28, 2026 -

Wilkins RV will conduct a two-part Safety and Towing Tips workshop at its Waterloo location on March 21, 2026, from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. The program consists of two distinct sessions separated by a 15-minute break. The opening session examines RV safety features and practices, including methods for fire prevention, correct application of safety equipment such as extinguishers and smoke detectors, and steps for preparing an RV for potential emergencies, including severe weather or mechanical issues.

The follow-up session concentrates on towing safety, detailing weight distribution principles, hitch alignment procedures, proper hitching and unhitching sequences, and considerations for trailer sway control and braking systems. The workshops deliver factual information applicable to individuals new to RV ownership as well as those with established experience in towing and travel.

The sessions run simultaneously across all six Wilkins RV locations in New York State, encompassing Waterloo, Bath, Brewerton, Churchville, Nichols, and Syracuse. This coordinated approach ensures consistent educational content reaches customers throughout the region. The dealership has organized these workshops as part of its established series of safety-focused programs, drawing on standard industry guidelines and practices related to RV operation. Participation remains open to the public, with registration handled through the dealership's online seminar system. Individuals requiring accessibility accommodations can request information directly from the Waterloo location staff during the registration process.

Denise Haggerty, the General Manager at the Wilkins RV Waterloo location, explained the ongoing value of the initiative. "We believe ownership doesn't stop at the point of sale. Hosting educational seminars like this allows us to continue supporting our customers long after they leave the dealership."

The March 21 scheduling aligns well with the approach of spring, a period when RV owners frequently resume their travel plans after winter storage and conduct important pre-season checks on vehicles and equipment. Many participants use these informative workshops to verify current practices against established safety standards or to address changes in towing regulations and emerging technology. The dealership has presented similar educational sessions in previous years, covering practical topics that include tire maintenance, propane system handling, and electrical safety, reflecting a consistent emphasis on proactive, useful education.

In addition to these essential topics, the upcoming workshops will also introduce valuable advancements in RV technology. Participants will have the opportunity to learn about the latest innovations in energy efficiency and smart towing systems. This hands-on learning experience will not only enhance their understanding but also foster a welcoming community among RV enthusiasts. By sharing stories and experiences, attendees can build lasting connections that extend beyond the workshops, creating a supportive network that promotes safe and enjoyable adventures on the road, enriching their overall experience.

Wilkins RV has developed a structured program of free workshops and seminars at its locations to provide owners with resources on safe and effective RV use. The Waterloo facility contributes to this effort by accommodating local attendees who seek detailed guidance on road safety, vehicle preparation, and maintenance best practices. By maintaining these educational opportunities, the dealership supports the broader RV community in adopting consistent safety measures that apply to diverse travel scenarios and equipment types. These workshops not only enhance knowledge but also foster a sense of community among RV enthusiasts, encouraging shared experiences and tips to ensure a safe and enjoyable journey on the road.
