

Perfect Storm Kitchen & Bath Addresses Common Misconception About Kitchen Remodeling Timelines in Scranton Area

May 06, 2026

PITTSTON TOWNSHIP, PA - May 06, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Perfect Storm Kitchen & Bath, a Northeast Pennsylvania remodeling company based in Pittston Township, is addressing a widespread misconception among Scranton-area homeowners that kitchen remodels require months of disruption. The company's project experience reveals that most kitchen renovations in the region are completed within one to four weeks, a timeline that surprises homeowners who have delayed renovations believing the process would be far more disruptive.

The assumption that kitchen remodeling is a months-long ordeal represents one of the most common reasons homeowners postpone projects they have been considering for years. This misconception often leads to unnecessary delays in home improvements that could enhance both functionality and property value.

"Many homeowners in Northeast Pennsylvania are genuinely surprised when they learn that their kitchen renovation can be completed in as little as one week for simpler updates or up to four weeks for more comprehensive remodels," said Jerome Sulkoski, co-founder of Perfect Storm Kitchen & Bath. "The key difference between perception and reality comes down to proper planning, coordinated project management, and having all design decisions finalized before the first day of construction."

Several factors contribute to efficient project timelines in kitchen remodeling services. Advance planning and pre-project design work play crucial roles in keeping renovations on schedule. When homeowners complete their material selections and approve final designs before construction begins, contractors can order materials with appropriate lead times and schedule work crews efficiently.

The use of 3D design tools has become particularly valuable in streamlining the renovation process. These visualization technologies allow homeowners to see their finished space before work begins, significantly reducing mid-project changes that commonly cause delays. When design decisions are made upfront rather than during construction, projects maintain their momentum and stay within projected timelines.

The full-service model, where design, material selection, and installation are handled by a single team, represents another critical factor in maintaining efficient project schedules. This integrated approach eliminates the coordination challenges that often arise when multiple contractors work independently on different aspects of a renovation.

"Having grown up in the Pittston area and worked on hundreds of local kitchen projects, we understand the specific needs and preferences of Northeast Pennsylvania homeowners," added Sulkoski. "This regional expertise, combined with our streamlined process, allows us to provide realistic timelines that we consistently meet."

The company's experience serving Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Pittston, and surrounding Northeast Pennsylvania communities has demonstrated that well-planned kitchen renovations need not be the extended disruptions many homeowners fear. Understanding actual project timelines can help homeowners make informed decisions about when to proceed with renovations they may have been postponing unnecessarily.

Perfect Storm Kitchen & Bath was founded by lifelong friends Paul and Jerome, who have grown the company into one of the top-rated remodelers in Northeast Pennsylvania. The company specializes in kitchen remodeling, bathroom remodeling, and countertop installation, operating a showroom in Pittston Township where customers can explore cabinets, countertops, flooring, and finishes while working with design professionals to plan their projects.
