October 15, 2026 -

House Call Chiros, a mobile chiropractic service provider serving the Phoenix Valley, has expanded its service capacity to address increasing demand for at-home chiropractic care across residential and corporate settings throughout the region.

The expansion comes as more Phoenix Valley residents and businesses seek alternatives to traditional clinic visits, particularly professionals with demanding schedules and organizations implementing comprehensive employee wellness programs. The company now offers expanded appointment availability seven days a week, with same-day service options designed to accommodate urgent care needs.

"The demand for spinal adjustment at home has increased significantly as people recognize the value of receiving professional chiropractic care without the stress of commuting or waiting in clinical settings," said Dr. Thomas Morgan, co-owner of House Call Chiros. "Our expanded service capacity allows us to bring comprehensive chiropractic treatments directly to homes, offices, hotels, and corporate facilities throughout the Phoenix Valley."

Recent industry data indicates growing consumer preference for healthcare services that prioritize convenience and personalization. This trend has particularly impacted the chiropractic industry, where practitioners are increasingly adopting mobile service models to meet evolving patient expectations. The Phoenix Valley market has seen notable growth in demand for on-site corporate wellness programs, with businesses recognizing the productivity benefits of providing employees with accessible healthcare options.

House Call Chiro addresses various conditions through its mobile service platform, including car accident injuries, workplace-related discomfort, and chronic pain management. The practice integrates traditional chiropractic techniques with complementary therapies, including cupping, massage, and myofascial release, all delivered at the client's preferred location.

The company's mobile chiropractic care model serves a diverse clientele, including busy executives, parents managing complex family schedules, hospitality guests, and corporations seeking on-site wellness solutions. Services extend beyond traditional house calls to include workplace visits, corporate wellness programs, and treatments at fitness facilities, yoga studios, and vacation rentals.

"Corporate clients have particularly embraced our on-site services as they see direct benefits in employee wellness and reduced absenteeism," noted Dr. Morgan. "We provide ergonomic assessments, workplace stretching programs, and educational seminars that help organizations build comprehensive wellness cultures."

The expansion includes enhanced service coverage for hotels and vacation rentals, addressing the needs of travelers experiencing discomfort during their stays. The company also provides specialized services at health events, job sites, and fitness facilities, bringing professional chiropractic care to locations where active individuals may experience acute needs.

House Call Chiro was founded by Dr. Thomas Morgan and Dr. Kristy Morgan, chiropractors with over 20 years of combined experience in personalized chiropractic care. The practice serves the entire Phoenix Valley region, operating seven days a week with flexible scheduling designed to accommodate diverse client needs. The company specializes in providing comprehensive chiropractic evaluations and treatments that eliminate traditional barriers to care access.
