South Shore Home Remodel Marks Decade of Kitchen Remodeling

QUINCY, MA - May 20, 2026 -
The firm earned a 2024 Quality Business Award after completing hundreds of home renovation projects

South Shore Home Remodel, a licensed kitchen remodeling contractor headquartered in Quincy, Massachusetts, announced that the company has reached a decade of operations serving homeowners across the South Shore region. The milestone follows the firm's receipt of a 2024 Quality Business Award for home renovations, recognizing its record of completed projects and client satisfaction.

Over the past ten years, South Shore Home Remodel has completed hundreds of kitchen renovation projects ranging from cabinet installations and layout reconfiguration to full-scale structural redesigns. The company employs a multidisciplinary team of interior designers, engineers, architects, and licensed general contractors who collaborate with homeowners from initial design through final construction. According to industry data, kitchen renovations in the greater Boston area start at approximately $15,000 for basic updates and can exceed $65,000 for high-end remodels, making contractor selection a significant financial decision for homeowners.

"We started this company because we saw families struggling to find contractors they could trust with the most important room in their home," said Bob Dougherty, Owner of South Shore Home Remodel. "A kitchen remodel is not just a construction job. It touches how a family cooks, gathers, and lives together every day, and that responsibility is something we have never taken lightly."

The company's kitchen remodeling services include wall removal, cabinet installation and refinishing, countertop replacement, electrical upgrades, plumbing work, window installation, and full layout redesign. South Shore Home Remodel also offers design consultation for homeowners who have not yet finalized plans, providing guidance on themes, materials, and space optimization. The firm currently holds a 5.0-star rating on Google based on verified client reviews and carries liability insurance coverage for all active home renovation projects. Standard kitchen updates typically require three to four weeks, while full renovations involving structural and electrical changes are completed within eight to twelve weeks.

Unlike contractors who require homeowners to arrive with finished blueprints, South Shore Home Remodel assigns a dedicated project manager to each kitchen renovation who works alongside the client from concept through completion. Past design collaborations have included alternatives to traditional kitchen islands, customized open shelving systems, Provencal-inspired California themes, and layouts tailored to the homeowner's profession or cooking habits. Every employee involved in the project holds current state licensure and certification, and the company obtains all required municipal permits on behalf of its clients before construction begins.

The demand for kitchen remodeling contractors in the northeastern United States has grown steadily as homeowners choose to renovate existing properties rather than enter a housing market marked by limited inventory and elevated mortgage rates. The National Association of Home Builders reported that residential remodeling activity reached record levels in recent years, with kitchens and bathrooms accounting for the largest share of project spending. For South Shore Home Remodel, that trend has translated into a consistent increase in consultation requests from homeowners across communities between Boston and Plymouth.

"What sets our process apart is that we do not hand a homeowner a list of material options and walk away," said Dougherty. "Our designers sit at the table with the family, review how they actually use the space, and then build a plan around their daily life rather than a catalog. That approach is why our clients come back to us for additional home renovation projects after their kitchen is finished."
