South Shore Home Remodel Expands Bathroom Remodel Services

May 28, 2026

QUINCY, MA - May 28, 2026 -
Quincy-based home remodeling contractor now offers dedicated bathroom renovation consultations across additional South Shore communities.

South Shore Home Remodel, a licensed home remodeling contractor headquartered in Quincy, Massachusetts, announced the expansion of its bathroom remodel services to homeowners in Abington, MA, and surrounding South Shore communities. The company, which has completed hundreds of residential renovation projects over more than a decade, now provides free design consultations and project estimates to Abington residents seeking to upgrade their bathroom spaces.

The expansion follows a period of sustained demand for residential bathroom renovation across Plymouth County and the broader South Shore region. South Shore Home Remodel reported that bathroom remodel requests from communities south of Quincy increased steadily throughout 2025, prompting the company to formalize service availability in Abington and neighboring towns. The firm's team of interior designers, contractors, engineers, and architects works on projects ranging from single-fixture updates to full-scale bathroom overhauls that include plumbing, electrical, tiling, and cabinetry.

"We have been receiving calls from Abington homeowners for some time, and it made sense to establish a dedicated presence in that community," said Bob Dougherty, Owner of South Shore Home Remodel. "Abington has a mix of older homes that need updates and newer properties where owners want to customize their spaces. Our team handles every phase of the bathroom renovation process, from initial layout and material selection through final installation, so homeowners have a single point of contact throughout the project."

South Shore Home Remodel holds a 5.0-star rating on Google based on verified customer reviews and maintains full licensing and liability insurance coverage for all active projects. The company's service area now spans more than 25 South Shore towns, including Abington, Braintree, Weymouth, Rockland, Holbrook, and Milton. In addition to bathroom remodeling, the contractor offers kitchen remodels, basement finishing, second-story additions, and new home construction. All employees hold current trade certifications, and the company's renovation work meets the Massachusetts state building standards.

Abington's housing profile makes the town a strong candidate for bathroom remodeling services. According to U.S. Census data, the town contains approximately 6,576 housing units, and the median year of construction is 1969. More than 21 percent of homes were built before the 1940s, and an additional 6 percent were completed by the end of the following decade. Homes of that age frequently require plumbing, fixture, and layout updates to meet current building codes and homeowner expectations. The town's median home value stands at $516,300, and 74.2 percent of units are owner-occupied, indicating a population with both the investment stake and the financial capacity to undertake home renovation projects.

The company's bathroom remodel process begins with an on-site assessment conducted by a project manager who evaluates the existing space, discusses design preferences, and identifies any structural or plumbing concerns before work begins. South Shore Home Remodel assigns a dedicated team to each project that manages the full scope of work, including demolition, rough-in plumbing and electrical, waterproofing, tile installation, vanity and fixture placement, and final finishing. The contractor noted that a typical bathroom renovation in the South Shore area takes between three and six weeks, depending on project complexity, and that all work is backed by the company's liability insurance policy and adherence to Massachusetts state permitting requirements.

"Many of the homes in the communities we serve were built during a period when bathroom layouts were smaller, and materials were different from what homeowners expect today," said Dougherty. "Our role is to bring those spaces up to current standards while respecting each homeowner's budget and timeline. Every project we take on goes through a structured planning phase before any demolition begins, which helps avoid surprises and keeps the bathroom remodel on schedule."
