Nova Warranty Announces Expanded Vehicle Service Program Coverage for 2026

May 15, 2026

WILMINGTON, DE - May 15, 2026 -
Nova Warranty, a vehicle service program provider operating for over 40 years, announced today the expansion of its protection plan offerings to include additional coverage components and support services. The expanded Nova Superior and Nova Powertrain plans now cover a broader range of vehicle systems and provide nationwide service network access.

The expansion addresses increased demand for vehicle service programs as repair costs for modern vehicles continue to rise. According to industry data, average automotive repair costs have increased by 23 percent over the past five years, with luxury and exotic vehicle repairs experiencing even steeper increases.

The expanded Nova Warranty Protection Plans now include coverage for engine components, transmission systems, drive axles, electrical systems, cooling mechanisms, brake systems, turbochargers and superchargers, all-wheel drive and four-wheel drive systems, differential assemblies, suspension components, steering systems, climate control systems, fuel delivery systems, anti-lock braking systems, and electronic control modules. The programs also incorporate roadside assistance services including 24-hour towing, rental car provisions during repairs, locksmith services, emergency fuel delivery, battery jump-start service, and trip interruption reimbursement.

"The expansion of our coverage components reflects changes in vehicle technology and owner requirements," said a Nova Warranty spokesperson. "Modern vehicles incorporate complex electronic systems and advanced mechanical components that require specialized coverage beyond traditional warranty parameters."

The vehicle service program market has experienced significant growth as vehicles remain in service longer. According to automotive industry reports, the average vehicle age on American roads has reached 12.5 years, creating demand for coverage options after manufacturer warranties expire. Nova Warranty's expanded programs address this market need through partnerships with repair facilities and dealerships across the United States.

The company's service programs differ from manufacturer warranties by providing coverage flexibility and customization options. Vehicle owners can select coverage levels based on their specific vehicle type and usage patterns. The programs cover various vehicle categories including standard passenger vehicles, luxury automobiles, exotic cars, and vintage models.

"Vehicle owners can Read Customer Reviews on our platform to evaluate our service delivery and claims processing performance," the spokesperson added. "Transparency in our operations and pricing structure remains fundamental to our business model."

Nova Warranty maintains a customer feedback rating of 4.8 out of 5 stars on third-party review platform Trustpilot, based on 100 verified customer reviews. The company processes quotes through its online platform and telephone service center, providing cost estimates without purchase obligations.

The expanded coverage announcement comes as the vehicle service contract industry adapts to evolving automotive technology. Electric vehicle components, advanced driver assistance systems, and hybrid powertrains present new coverage challenges that service program providers must address. Industry analysts project the vehicle service contract market will reach $52 billion by 2025, driven by increasing vehicle complexity and repair costs.

Nova Warranty operates from its headquarters in Wilmington, Delaware, providing vehicle service programs nationwide. The company specializes in repair coverage for vehicles after manufacturer warranty expiration, offering what industry publications have referenced as the Best Auto Extended Warranty options for various vehicle categories. The organization maintains partnerships with repair facilities and dealerships throughout the United States to facilitate service delivery for program participants.
