

Davis & Son Expands Electrical Services Throughout Aurora and Southwest Missouri Region

May 20, 2026

MONETT, MO - May 20, 2026 -
Davis & Son, a Southwest Missouri contractor with over four decades of experience, has announced the expansion of its comprehensive electrical services throughout Aurora and the surrounding region. The company, previously known primarily for its HVAC and plumbing work, is emphasizing its full-service electrical capabilities to meet growing demand for licensed electrical contractors in the area.

The expansion of Davis and Son Electrical Services comes as the region experiences increased residential and commercial development, creating heightened demand for code-compliant electrical installations and upgrades. The company's licensed electricians provide a complete range of services including panel upgrades, wiring installation and repair, outlet and switch installation, lighting systems, ceiling fan installation, generator service, surge protection, and electric vehicle charger installation.

"We recognized that many property owners in Southwest Missouri were searching for reliable electrical contractors who could handle everything from routine maintenance to complex commercial installations," said

Kristen, Director of Operations at Davis & Son. "By expanding our electrical division, we can now serve as a single source for all essential home and business systems, which saves our customers time and ensures consistency in service quality."

The company's electrical division serves residential, commercial, and industrial clients across an eight-county area including Barry, Lawrence, Christian, Greene, Jasper, Newton, McDonald, and Stone counties. Cities within the service area include Aurora, Springfield, Cassville, Monett, Purdy, Pierce City, and Mount Vernon. Emergency electrical repair services are available alongside scheduled installations and routine maintenance work.

Davis and Son Local Electrician teams undergo continuous training to stay current with National Electrical Code requirements and emerging technologies. The company's electrical services address critical safety concerns including identifying and correcting faulty or outdated wiring, upgrading panels to meet modern power demands, ensuring code compliance, protecting properties from electrical hazards and fire risks, and improving energy efficiency.

The expansion includes specialized services that reflect changing technology needs in Southwest Missouri homes and businesses. Electric vehicle charger installations have become increasingly requested as more residents adopt electric vehicles. Similarly, whole-home surge protection systems and generator installations provide essential backup power and equipment protection that many property owners now consider standard.

Commercial and industrial clients benefit from the company's experience with larger-scale electrical projects, including complete system design, installation, and ongoing maintenance programs. Code compliance inspections help businesses maintain safety standards and avoid costly violations.

Davis & Son maintains its headquarters in Monett and operates throughout Southwest Missouri. The company employs licensed electricians, HVAC technicians, and plumbers, offering integrated services for residential and commercial properties. With more than 40 years serving the region, the company has established a reputation for fast response times, particularly for emergency repairs, and commitment to customer satisfaction. The electrical services expansion represents the company's ongoing investment in meeting the evolving needs of Southwest Missouri communities.
