May 18, 2026 -
Atiyeh Bros., a Portland-based rug and carpet specialist with over four decades of experience, announces expanded capabilities in oriental rug repair services to meet growing demand for professional textile restoration throughout the Portland metropolitan area. The company's enhanced repair offerings address the increasing need for expert conservation of valuable and heirloom rugs as more collectors and homeowners seek to preserve these important textiles.

The expansion comes as oriental and area rugs continue to gain appreciation as both functional art pieces and family heirlooms requiring specialized care. With all repair work performed in-house by experienced craftspeople, the company now offers comprehensive restoration services including hand edge repair, hand end repair, professional patching, and precise binding and serging techniques.

"Oriental rugs represent significant investments and often carry deep sentimental value for families," said

Leslie Atiyeh, spokesperson for Atiyeh Bros. "Our expanded repair capabilities ensure these treasured pieces can be properly restored and preserved for future generations, whether addressing wear from daily use or more extensive damage requiring specialized attention."

The company's repair specialists work with various rug types including hand-tufted rugs, Aubusson rugs, braided rugs, and other specialty textiles. Each restoration project begins with a detailed assessment to determine the appropriate repair method, ensuring the integrity and value of the piece remains intact throughout the restoration process.

Atiyeh Bros. Portland Rug & Carpet Cleaning oriental rug repair services have become increasingly vital as many rug owners discover damage from moths, pets, or simple wear that threatens their textiles' longevity. The company's technicians employ traditional hand-repair techniques alongside modern conservation methods to address everything from minor fraying to significant structural damage.

"We see rugs that have been in families for generations, and our goal is to restore them to their former beauty while maintaining their authentic character," explained David Atiyeh, senior repair specialist. "Every repair requires careful attention to match original weaving patterns, colors, and materials to ensure seamless restoration."

The timing of this service expansion reflects broader trends in home preservation and sustainability, as consumers increasingly choose to restore quality pieces rather than replace them. Professional rug repair not only extends the life of these textiles but also maintains their value as collectible items and family treasures.

Atiyeh Bros. has served the Portland area for more than forty years, establishing itself as a trusted resource for oriental and area rug cleaning, repair, and restoration. The company maintains locations in Tigard, Portland, and Eugene, offering both retail showroom services and specialized cleaning facilities. Beyond rug services, the company provides wall-to-wall carpet cleaning, upholstered furniture cleaning, and comprehensive stain removal solutions for residential and commercial clients throughout Oregon.
