Fence Brothers Backs Residential Fence Installs with 5-Year Warranty

May 26, 2026

KENTWOOD, MI - May 26, 2026 -
Fence Brothers, a family-owned fence contractor based in Kentwood, today announced its residential fencing installation program for West Michigan homeowners, including a five-year workmanship warranty that covers all installations, among them wood fences, which most area contractors exclude from their coverage.

Wood fencing accounts for the majority of the company's residential projects. Crews build each fence on-site, piece by piece, rather than from pre-fabricated panels. Rails are true 2x4 lumber, meaning the physical dimensions measure two inches by four inches rather than the slightly smaller nominal sizing common in the industry. Pickets run 11/16 of an inch thick, a dimension that holds up better through the repeated freeze-thaw cycles West Michigan yards see from late fall through early spring.

The Trierweiler family has 34 years of experience in the West Michigan lumber industry, a background that shapes how the company selects materials for each project. The company sources white cedar from mills in the Upper Peninsula and northern Michigan. Cedar's natural oils resist moisture and insects without chemical treatment, making it well suited to Michigan's wet winters and year-round temperature swings. Before any board goes into a fence, the company checks grain consistency and moisture content.

Fence Brothers manages the full pre-installation process on every residential project, including permit applications, utility marking, property line reviews, and HOA restriction checks. The company files permits with local municipalities and arranges utility marking through Michigan's MISS DIG 811 program, a state law requirement before any post goes in the ground. The homeowner does not contact the township office, the utility company, or the HOA directly. The company also evaluates ground conditions before setting posts, since sandy soils in the western part of the service area behave differently from the clay-heavy ground near Kentwood and Caledonia during freeze-thaw cycles.

Fence Brothers also installs vinyl, aluminum, and chain link fencing for residential properties. The company holds preferred installer status with Vecca, a local West Michigan vinyl fence manufacturer, and sources from Wheatland for styles and colors not available through its primary supplier. Aluminum fencing is commonly selected for pool enclosures and properties where owners want defined boundaries without blocking sight lines. Gate installation and motorized gate operators round out the residential offering, a service available from few fence contractors in the area.

The company serves homeowners throughout the Grand Rapids metro area and communities to the east, south, and west, including Ada, East Grand Rapids, Byron Center, Caledonia, Rockford, and Holland. Many of those areas have active HOA guidelines covering fence height, approved materials, and style restrictions. Fence Brothers has been in operation since 2013 and holds Angi Approved status, earning the Angi Super Service Award for 2025.

"Most fence failures in this area come down to two things: posts that were not set deep enough for the frost line, or materials built to a price instead of a standard," said Alec Trierweiler, co-owner of Fence Brothers. "We get calls on that kind of work every spring. The warranty is our commitment that what we build will not end up on that list."
