Forever Barnwood Expands Custom Barn Door Offerings for Residential and Commercial Installations

May 19, 2026

PLUM CITY, WI - May 19, 2026 -
Forever Barnwood has expanded its selection of custom barn doors, providing builders, designers, and homeowners with additional options for rustic interior applications. The Wisconsin company manufactures the doors from fresh-cut White Pine, White Oak, Cherry, Walnut, Knotty Alder, and Hickory, sourced from managed local forests. The material is kiln-dried and processed using a patent-pending method to produce textures and colors that replicate the appearance of aged barnwood. All Forever Barnwood doors are engineered - hardwood, stave-core constructed for stability, and long-lasting performance.

Standard sliding barn doors start in the $650 range, while interior pre-hung doors begin at around $695, with pricing varying by size, specifications, and wood species. Larger doors exceeding 8 feet in height or 3 feet in width are available through custom quoting. The doors arrive ready for installation without the preparation steps required for reclaimed materials.

The manufacturing process yields consistent dimensions and quality. Products feature hand-distressed surfaces in multiple finish options, including traditional deep brown tones, red barn shades, patina, and century grays, farmhouse white variations, and special orders such as burnt black. These finishes allow coordination with other Forever Barnwood elements, such as wall coverings, beams, flooring, and stair parts, for a unified project execution.

Installation examples include interior room dividers, closet doors, pantry entrances, and commercial space separators. The sliding hardware systems integrate with the doors to support smooth operation in both new construction and renovation settings. Dimensional stability from kiln-drying to 5-8% moisture content reduces potential movement after placement.

Chad Bleeker, co-owner of Forever Barnwood, stated: "The expanded barn door line provides measured options for projects requiring specific sizes and finishes that align with overall design plans. Forever Barnwood is aiming to be a full-service millwork and door shop.?

Jason Bast, co-owner of Forever Barnwood, added: "Production from renewable resources combined with controlled processing supports availability for scheduled project timelines."

Project records indicate doors installed in lake cabins, barn-style homes, and retail environments. One installation at River City Stitch in Prescott, Wisconsin, incorporated barnwood elements alongside other products, resulting in a completed retail space. Another project used stair parts and dimensional lumber, along with barnwood accents, throughout a residence.

The doors contribute to complete interior packages. Complementary items include box beams and posts, mantles and corbels, plank flooring, wall coverings, and millwork components for hutches, cabinetry, or fireplace surrounds. This selection supports floor-to-ceiling applications in residential homes, commercial venues, and hospitality settings.

Production emphasizes renewable sourcing from Wisconsin timberlands. The approach provides an alternative to reclaimed wood by eliminating variables in supply, quality, and preparation. Unlimited quantities and factory-direct availability support larger-scale or phased installations.

Forever Barnwood maintains in-house expertise in various wood species, innovative design, and efficient construction. The skilled team assists with custom specifications to perfectly match architectural requirements and aesthetic goals. Samples and detailed installation guidance are readily available to facilitate seamless project planning.

The expansion of barn door offerings aligns perfectly with the ongoing demand for rustic elements that thoughtfully combine visual character with practical performance. Products are meticulously designed for seamless integration into diverse interior styles while maintaining high production standards for repeatability.

Forever Barnwood is a proud Wisconsin-based manufacturer of unique barnwood products sourced from renewable resources. The company supplies a wide range of interior elements, including beautifully crafted doors, sturdy beams, elegant flooring, sophisticated wall coverings, and related components for both residential and commercial applications.
