

AEI Decon Meth & Mold Remediation Marks 11 Years of Specialized Hazardous Cleanup Services in Utah

May 21, 2026

SOUTH SALT LAKE, UT - May 21, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

AEI Decon Meth & Mold Remediation, a professional decontamination service provider, marks more than 11 years of providing specialized methamphetamine remediation, mold removal, hoarder cleanup, and indoor air quality services throughout Utah. The milestone reflects the company's sustained commitment to restoring contaminated properties to safe, healthy conditions across Salt Lake County, Davis County, Utah County, Weber County, and Tooele.

Over the past decade, the company has developed comprehensive protocols for addressing some of the most challenging environmental hazards found in residential and commercial properties. The specialized services include methamphetamine decontamination, mold colony removal, hoarder property restoration, and duct system cleaning to improve indoor air quality.

"Reaching this 11-year milestone represents thousands of properties successfully restored and countless families returned to safe living environments," said Eric Wright, Operations Director at AEI Decon. "Each contamination scenario presents unique challenges, and our experience allows us to develop customized remediation plans that address the specific needs of each property while maintaining strict safety standards."

The methamphetamine remediation process developed by the company involves detailed testing to identify contamination levels, followed by systematic decontamination of all affected surfaces, including HVAC systems and ductwork. The company utilizes industry-approved techniques to neutralize meth residue and conducts post-remediation testing to verify that properties meet safety standards.

Mold remediation services follow a similar comprehensive approach, beginning with testing to determine the extent of contamination. The cleanup process includes removing mold colonies from ductwork and HVAC systems, deep-cleaning contaminated surfaces, and treating duct systems to prevent future mold growth. The company handles all necessary permitting requirements for hazardous contaminant removal.

AEI Decon Meth & Mold Remediation in South Salt Lake has also expanded its expertise to include hoarder cleanup services, addressing properties where accumulated items create health and safety hazards. These situations require careful handling of disposal, deep cleaning, and sanitization to restore properties to habitable conditions.

Indoor air quality solutions represent another critical service area, with the company conducting comprehensive duct cleaning to remove harmful pollutants. Initial testing identifies contaminants in the air system, followed by thorough cleaning and treatment to prevent the return of mold or other pollutants.

"The complexity of environmental contamination has evolved significantly over the past 11 years, particularly with increased awareness of methamphetamine contamination in properties," added Wright. "Our team continuously updates our methodologies and equipment to meet these challenges while prioritizing safety, discretion, and reliability for property owners."

The company serves all areas of South Salt Lake and surrounding counties, providing documentation of remediation processes and maintenance plans to property owners. Each project concludes with retesting to ensure air quality meets safety standards before properties are cleared for occupancy.

AEI Decon specializes in methamphetamine remediation, mold removal, hoarder cleanup, and indoor air quality solutions throughout Utah. With over 11 years of experience in hazardous cleanup services, the company focuses on restoring contaminated spaces to clean and healthy conditions using advanced decontamination techniques and industry-approved methodologies.
