The BBB accreditation represents adherence to strict business standards including transparency, responsiveness to customer concerns, and ethical business practices. The A+ rating, the highest designation available from the Better Business Bureau, reflects the company's track record of resolving customer issues and maintaining professional standards across its service operations.

"Achieving and maintaining BBB accreditation with an A+ rating demonstrates our dedication to serving Loudon County residents with integrity and professionalism," said Lior Hason, owner of Good Day Garage Doors. "This recognition validates the trust our customers place in us for their garage door repair, installation, and maintenance needs."

The company operates physical offices throughout East Tennessee, including locations in Knoxville, Maryville, Oak Ridge, and Pigeon Forge, in addition to its Lenoir City facility. The BBB accreditation process involves meeting specific criteria related to business licensing, advertising practices, and commitment to resolving consumer complaints. "The A+ rating reflects years of consistent service delivery and our team's commitment to addressing every customer's needs professionally," added Hason. "From emergency repairs when vehicles are trapped to routine maintenance that prevents future problems, our technicians approach each service call with the same level of dedication."

The company specializes in various aspects of garage door service, including troubleshooting doors that are stuck or making unusual noises, replacing worn springs and cables, installing new openers with smart technology capabilities, and providing custom-sized door solutions for unique architectural requirements.
