

Index Fence Introduces Vinyl Privacy Fence Installation Service

May 29, 2026

RALEIGH, NC - May 29, 2026 -
Index Fence Inc., a fence installation company serving Wake County since 2020, today introduced its vinyl privacy fence installation service, built on virgin polyvinyl chloride manufactured in the United States and a three-rail construction standard that places an additional horizontal support member in the center of every six-foot panel.

Vinyl privacy fencing accounts for roughly 70 percent of the company's completed work across the Raleigh metro area, with more than 2,000 residential installations since the company's founding. Index Fence sources all vinyl from domestic manufacturers and specifies panels with a minimum wall thickness of 0.120 inches, a measurement that affects panel performance under wind loading and the seasonal soil movement common in the region. Raleigh averages 218 sunny days per year and relative humidity above 70 percent from May through October. That combination accelerates chalking and surface degradation in thinner-wall products made from recycled or imported vinyl blends.

The three-rail standard cuts the unsupported center span of each panel nearly in half compared with two-rail installations, reducing panel flex during high-wind events. Index Fence sets each post 24 inches deep in 80 to 100 pounds of concrete, a specification sized for Wake County's Cecil clay series. Cecil clay swells when wet and shrinks when dry. That cycling pushes fence posts out of plumb over time. On properties with saturated or sloped ground, the company hand-digs post holes rather than using a power auger, which in wet clay produces a smooth hole wall that reduces the concrete-to-soil bond.

The vinyl service is available in multiple configurations for standard residential properties and homes in communities governed by homeowners associations. Solid privacy panels at six feet make up the majority of installations. Semi-privacy panels are designed for HOA communities that require fence opacity below a specified threshold. Additional options include picket styles for front-yard applications and pool barrier enclosures built to North Carolina's 48-inch minimum height requirement with self-latching gate hardware.

Vinyl fences installed by Index Fence carry a lifetime manufacturer warranty covering material defects and UV degradation, and a two-year workmanship warranty for post movement, panel separation, and gate misalignment. The company prepares city permit documentation as part of every project estimate, at no additional charge, covering the $264 zoning permit the City of Raleigh requires for all new fence installations. For properties subject to homeowners association review, Index Fence prepares all required architectural review documentation. The homeowner submits the completed package directly to the association board.

Homeowners interested in the materials before committing can visit the company's stock room at 4901 Craftsman Dr in Raleigh, open during regular business hours without an appointment. All vinyl panels, posts, and rails are available to inspect before any project is quoted.

"Most homeowners cannot tell virgin vinyl from recycled vinyl by looking at a photograph," said Behzad Namazifard, Owner of Index Fence Inc. "That is why we built the stock room. When someone picks up the post and feels the wall thickness, the question answers itself."
