

All Building Construction Marks 20 Years as Competition Grows

June 04, 2026

MCMINNVILLE, OR - June 04, 2026 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

All Building Construction, a McMinnville general contractor, is marking 20 years in business this year. The milestone comes as the number of contractors operating in Oregon has grown considerably since 2006 ? and so has the number of homeowners left dealing with their unfinished work.

Mark Prine founded the company in 2006 and has held Oregon Construction Contractors Board license #174384, the state credential that authorizes residential and commercial construction work and tracks complaint and disciplinary history against licensed contractors, for two full decades without a complaint or regulatory action. All Building Construction serves homeowners in McMinnville and throughout Yamhill County, offering kitchen and bathroom remodeling, room additions, whole-home remodels, accessory dwelling unit construction, custom home building, siding and window replacement, and deck construction. The company's project history includes work on homes built as far back as the early 1900s, which are common throughout McMinnville and Yamhill County.

Oregon's residential remodeling market has grown sharply since 2006, but the quality of work hasn't kept pace with the number of companies entering the trade. Homeowner reports of unpermitted construction, mid-project walkoffs, budget overruns beyond quoted estimates, and materials swapped out without notice have become more common. Work done without permits creates practical problems for property owners: code violations found during sale inspections can require costly corrections or teardowns, and unpermitted additions may complicate future financing or insurance coverage. All Building Construction files permits, coordinates with local building officials throughout each project, and stays through final inspection sign-off on every job it takes on.

Requests from homeowners left with code-deficient or unfinished work from other contractors have been a recurring part of the company's incoming inquiries, covering cases where additions were built without permits, structural repairs were made incorrectly, and renovation work stopped before completion. All Building Construction has assessed the prior work in those cases, identified the corrections needed to bring the project into compliance, and finished the job. Prine has said these jobs come in regularly.

Prine began working in residential construction as a teenager and had reached a supervisory role on jobsites by his senior year of high school. He spent years on projects across Oregon, California, and Hawaii before founding All Building Construction in McMinnville in 2006. He has kept the company owner-operated throughout, handling client consultations personally, overseeing field crews, and walking through each finished project with the homeowner before closing it out. The company works with an in-house crew of trained laborers and journeymen rather than subcontractors, and provides written estimates before any work begins. All Building Construction holds a 4.9-star rating across 47 Google reviews.

"There are a lot more remodeling contractors around than there were 20 years ago, and not all of them are doing it right," said Mark Prine, owner of All Building Construction. "We get calls from homeowners dealing with unpermitted work, or a crew that walked off the job halfway through. That is not how we operate, and it never has been."
