South Shore Basement Finishing Expands Remodel Services

June 17, 2026

QUINCY, MA - June 17, 2026 -
Quincy-based basement contractor extends dedicated remodeling and waterproofing offerings to coastal Massachusetts homeowners.

South Shore Basement Finishing Company, a basement remodel contractor headquartered in Quincy, Massachusetts, announced it has expanded its dedicated basement finishing and renovation services to homeowners in Scituate, MA. The expansion, which includes custom design, waterproofing, and full-scope remodeling, follows the company's recognition as a 2026 Quality Business Award winner for basement renovation in the greater Quincy area.

The company currently serves more than 28 towns across the South Shore region of Massachusetts, offering services that range from basement finishing and waterproofing to the construction of home theaters, guest suites, and custom entertainment spaces. According to the National Association of Home Builders, a finished basement can recoup between 70 and 75 percent of its cost in added home value, making basement remodel projects a practical investment for homeowners seeking additional living space without the cost of a full addition.

"We've seen a consistent increase in demand from homeowners who want to make better use of the space they already have," said Susan Snow, Owner of South Shore Basement Finishing Company. "Scituate families are no different ? they want functional rooms that fit their lifestyle, whether that's a home office, a guest bedroom, or a place to gather with family. Our role is to build spaces that homeowners will use every day, not just admire."

South Shore Basement Finishing Company approaches each basement renovation project with a process that begins with a free on-site consultation and custom design plan. The company's Scituate services include basement remodeling, moisture control, electrical and plumbing upgrades, flooring and wall finishing, and the construction of specialty rooms such as home theaters and wet bars. The company noted that coastal properties often require additional attention to moisture management, a factor the team addresses through dedicated waterproofing systems designed for long-term durability.

Scituate's proximity to the Atlantic coast presents specific conditions that factor into basement finishing work. Properties in the area contend with elevated water tables, salt air exposure, and seasonal storm surges that can affect below-grade structures. According to the Federal Emergency Management Agency, Plymouth County ? where Scituate is located ? has experienced repeated flood events over the past decade, making moisture control a central consideration in any basement remodel. South Shore Basement Finishing Company said its waterproofing protocols for coastal projects include interior drainage systems, vapor barriers, and sump pump installations rated for high-volume water intrusion.

"A basement renovation in a coastal town is not the same job as one ten miles inland," said Susan Snow, Owner of South Shore Basement Finishing Company. "The materials we select, the way we insulate, and the drainage systems we install all have to account for the environment. When we finish a basement in Scituate, we build it to handle the conditions that come with living near the water."

The expansion into Scituate comes at a time when homeowners across Massachusetts are increasingly choosing to renovate existing space rather than relocate. A 2025 report from the Joint Center for Housing Studies at Harvard University found that nationwide spending on home improvement and repair reached $457 billion, with basement conversions ranking among the most common projects undertaken by owners of single-family homes. The trend has been driven in part by the continued prevalence of remote and hybrid work arrangements, which have increased demand for dedicated home office and multipurpose living spaces. South Shore Basement Finishing Company reported that requests for basement home offices and dual-purpose guest suite and workspace combinations have grown steadily since 2023.
