Timeless Shower Doors has introduced a custom-built line of luxury shower doors for residential projects, expanding its offerings to meet increasing demand from homeowners, interior designers, and contractors seeking made-to-measure glass shower solutions for mid- to high-end bathroom renovations. The company serves residential and commercial markets across Southeast Michigan.

As bathroom renovation activity continues among homeowners investing in long-term property improvements, demand for custom-fit, high-quality shower enclosures has grown accordingly. Timeless Shower Doors' luxury shower door solutions are designed to meet that demand by offering a made-to-measure alternative to standard off-the-shelf products that may not meet the design, fit, or material expectations associated with higher-end bathroom projects. Real estate professionals frequently identify bathroom upgrades, including the installation of frameless glass shower doors, as features that can improve a property's market presentation and appeal to prospective buyers.

The new line was developed for residential renovation projects where precision, visual continuity, and long-term usability are important considerations. In many bathroom layouts, standard shower doors can create gaps, sizing limitations, or design compromises that affect the finished appearance of the space. Timeless Shower Doors addresses these issues through a custom measurement and fabrication process intended to align each enclosure with the dimensions, layout, and design goals of the specific project.

"A custom-built luxury shower door is not an afterthought. It is a defining element of a well-designed bathroom, and it deserves the same level of care and craftsmanship as every other feature in the space," said Brian Pecoraro, Owner and Operator of Timeless Shower Doors.

The new offerings include frameless enclosures, semi-frameless designs, sliding door systems, and pivot door configurations. Frameless and semi-frameless options are widely used in contemporary residential interiors because they support open, unobstructed bathroom layouts without the visual weight of traditional framed systems. These configurations can be especially useful in renovation projects where homeowners want to create a cleaner, more spacious appearance while maintaining a functional shower enclosure.

Each door is manufactured using tempered glass and engineered hardware built for durability and long-term performance. Glass is available in clear, frosted, textured, and tinted varieties, with thickness options of 3/8-inch and 1/2-inch to accommodate different structural specifications and design requirements. Hardware finishes include chrome, brushed nickel, oil-rubbed bronze, and matte black, allowing the shower enclosure to coordinate with faucets, towel bars, cabinet hardware, mirrors, lighting, and other bathroom features.

Beyond design, frameless and semi-frameless configurations address a practical concern common among homeowners: maintenance. By reducing or eliminating the metal tracks and frame channels found in traditional enclosures, these designs remove many of the areas where moisture, soap residue, and mold typically accumulate. The result is a shower system designed to support easier routine cleaning over time while maintaining a more streamlined appearance.

Timeless Shower Doors applies a made-to-measure process to every project. Following an initial assessment of the client's space and design requirements, each door is manufactured to exact specifications. This approach helps reduce the fit and finish compromises associated with standard off-the-shelf products and supports consistency with the broader standards of high-end residential construction.

The company also works with homeowners, contractors, and designers during the planning stages of bathroom renovation projects. This coordination can help ensure that the selected shower door system is compatible with tile layouts, wall conditions, plumbing placement, fixture selections, and overall project sequencing. For projects involving new construction or major bathroom remodeling, early planning can also help avoid installation challenges once surrounding finishes have been completed.

In addition to its shower door line, Timeless Shower Doors can assist with the selection of complementary bathroom elements including fixtures, vanities, flooring, mirrors, and lighting. This support allows clients undertaking full bathroom renovations to coordinate multiple design components through a single point of contact. The company provides consultation, customization, professional installation, and post-installation support as part of its service model.
