The Disability Guys Announce Personal Injury Lawyer Update

June 02, 2026

June 02, 2026 -
The Disability Guys announced an update to its personal injury lawyer services in June 2026 to provide additional information about how the firm reviews and handles injury-related civil matters in New York. The update is intended to clarify the legal processes that may apply when individuals seek information about potential personal injury claims.

?This update reflects the firm?s continued review of how injury matters are documented, evaluated, and handled under New York civil procedures,? said Brian Mittman, Esq., Managing Partner at The Disability Guys. ?The firm?s role is to examine the facts, identify applicable legal issues, and explain the procedural steps involved in each matter.?

The Disability Guys operates as Markhoff & Mittman, P.C., a law firm whose practice areas include personal injury, disability, workers? compensation, and workers? rights matters. The firm maintains multiple office locations throughout New York and provides legal services related to civil claims and administrative proceedings.

The Goshen personal injury lawyer update concerns matters that may arise from motor vehicle accidents, workplace incidents, premises liability claims, and other events involving alleged injuries. As part of its review process, the firm examines available records, incident details, insurance communications, medical documentation, and applicable legal deadlines.

Personal injury claims typically involve questions regarding liability, causation, damages, and available evidence. The firm reviews these issues according to the facts presented in each matter and the requirements established under New York law.

The Disability Guys stated that injury-related legal matters frequently involve multiple forms of documentation.

Medical records, accident reports, photographs, witness statements, wage information, and insurance records may all play a role in evaluating the circumstances of a claim.

The firm?s injury practice may also intersect with disability and workers? compensation matters when an injury affects employment status, income, or medical treatment. In those situations, separate administrative and civil processes may be relevant to the same underlying event.

The update also addresses the importance of understanding legal timelines that can affect injury claims. Filing deadlines and procedural requirements may vary depending on the nature of the claim, the parties involved, and whether government entities, employers, insurance carriers, or other organizations are part of the matter.

Brian Mittman, Esq. serves as Managing Partner of Markhoff & Mittman, P.C. The firm identifies personal injury, workers? compensation, Social Security disability, and workers? rights representation among its practice areas. Its personal injury work includes the review of records, timelines, insurance correspondence, and other materials that may be relevant to civil claims arising from accidents or injury-related events.

According to the firm, the update is intended to make information about personal injury procedures more accessible for individuals seeking to understand available legal options following an accident or injury-related event. The Disability Guys indicated that additional information regarding its legal services, office locations, attorney profiles, and practice areas is available through the firm?s official website. The firm also states that case information is reviewed according to the facts presented, the documents available, and the procedures that apply under New York law.

The firm noted that personal injury matters often involve ongoing developments after an incident, including medical treatment, insurance evaluations, and the collection of additional records. Legal review may continue as new information becomes available and as parties involved in a claim exchange documentation or respond to requests. The update reflects the firm?s ongoing effort to provide information about these processes and the factors that may influence the progression of a civil injury matter.
