COVENTRY, UK - June 09, 2026 -
Light Lane Dental Practice has announced that consultation appointments are now available for individuals interested in invisible braces as a method of straightening teeth. The Coventry-based practice is offering assessments for patients who would like to learn more about clear aligner systems, including Invisalign and Angel Aligner. The consultations are intended to help determine suitability for treatment and provide information about the different options available. The practice has also confirmed that initial consultations can be arranged without charge.

Invisible braces have become an increasingly popular option among adults and older teenagers seeking orthodontic treatment that is less noticeable than conventional fixed braces. Rather than using brackets and wires, clear aligner systems rely on a series of transparent trays that are custom-made to fit over the teeth. Each aligner is designed to make small, controlled movements, gradually guiding teeth into improved positions over the course of treatment.

Invisalign and Angel Aligner treatments can correct a range of orthodontic problems, according to information released by the practice. Common problems include overcrowding of teeth, gaps between teeth and some bite-related irregularities. Since the aligners are made of transparent materials, they are often chosen by patients to straighten their teeth without making their treatment visible during daily activities.

The aligners are removable, allowing patients to take them out when eating meals, consuming hot drinks, and carrying out daily oral hygiene routines. As a result, brushing and flossing can continue largely as normal throughout treatment. The practice notes, however, that treatment outcomes depend on aligners being worn consistently for the recommended number of hours each day.

Research has also highlighted the effectiveness of clear aligner treatment in suitable orthodontic cases. A 2017 systematic review and meta-analysis titled ?Efficiency, Effectiveness and Treatment Stability of Clear Aligners?, published in Orthodontics & Craniofacial Research and conducted in China, found that clear aligners may offer shorter treatment times and reduced chair time in mild-to-moderate orthodontic cases when compared with conventional braces. Conducted by Zheng M, Liu R, Ni Z, and Yu Z, the study also reported comparable outcomes in treatment stability and occlusal results between the two treatment approaches. The findings contribute to a growing body of evidence supporting clear aligners as a viable option for appropriately selected patients seeking orthodontic treatment.

The practice explains that modern aligner systems are supported by digital treatment planning technology. Before treatment begins, scans or impressions can be used to create a virtual representation of the patient's teeth. This allows clinicians to map anticipated tooth movement and provide a visual indication of the expected outcome before aligners are manufactured.

While Invisalign and Angel Aligner share many similarities, recommendations are made according to the specific needs of each patient. Consultation appointments typically include an examination of the teeth, gums, and bite relationship, together with discussions about desired outcomes and available treatment pathways. Patients are given an opportunity to learn more about the expected treatment process, likely timescales, and any limitations that may apply to their particular case.

Alongside invisible braces, Light Lane Dental Practice offers a wider selection of orthodontic treatments, including fixed braces and other approaches designed to address different alignment concerns. These treatments form part of a broader range of dental care available at the practice, which also includes preventive, restorative, and cosmetic dentistry.

The practice has served the Coventry community with family dentistry, both private and NHS, for more than 40 years. During that time, it has provided care for patients of varying ages and treatment requirements. The availability of invisible braces consultations reflects ongoing interest in orthodontic treatments that can be incorporated more easily into professional, social, and educational routines.

Practice representatives state that treatment recommendations are based on clinical findings and patient objectives rather than a one-size-fits-all approach. By discussing available options in detail during consultations, the team aims to help patients make informed decisions about their dental care and any future orthodontic treatment.
